Where Niagara Rolls Down
Three Men, Three Books
Birds in the Air
Signs on Delaware Avenue

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Oct. 26—Here the water of the Great Lakes comes rushing over the rocky cliff on its hurrying journey to the ocean, whence it came. It rolled over that high wall of rock a million years before the first two-legged thinking animal, whoever he was, came here to discover the cataract. For thousands of centuries these waters, lifted by the sun's power from the ocean into clouds, and blown by the winds, to fall in raindrops on thousands of square miles of land, have been rising from the ocean and going back again.

Now human intelligence has harnessed Niagara and collects from its billions of drops the power used in lifting them from the ocean into the sky, power released by them as they fall and rush back to the ocean, in eternal usefulness, and beauty.

So it is with the stream of human life, the millions of individual drops, constantly rushing over the cliff of death back to the source whence they came, constantly renewed, never ceasing.

And that cataract of human life is harnessed by a higher wisdom as the cataract of Niagara is harnessed by the wisdom of men and made to do work that is useful.

Human beings understand as little the work that they are doing, the purpose they fulfill, as Niagara's water drops understand their work, the fact that their power is lighting a city in one place, killing a criminal in another.

Americans should see Niagara, to appreciate its grandeur as well as they can, which is not very well, and to be reminded of their own littleness.

You should study, for at least an hour, study intently the rushing water, the heavy dark green torrents, the rushing white walls, the perpendicular columns of pale mist that travel along the downward current of the river. The longer you look the greater the cataract becomes, the smaller you seem to yourself.

Newton said, looking back upon his life work, that he felt like a child playing with a little sand on the edge of the ocean, with immensity stretching around beyond his own comprehension.

Niagara will make the proudest man realize that all he is or ever can be is nothing more important, in the sight of eternity, than one of those drops of water that make up the great cataract, dutifully contributing its share of power.

Passing through Buffalo, on the way here, up Delaware avenue, one of the most beautiful city streets in America, you see in a bookstore window, between Cary and Chippewa streets, a sign, "The fair-minded man must read both," and under that sign two fresh new books, with these titles in large letters on their "jackets":

"New Frontiers, by Henry A. Wallace."

"The Challenge to Liberty, by Herbert Hoover."

Off toward one side, away from the imperative sign, is a third book, fresh and new, entitled, "On Our Way, by Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Those three books present America today and prevailing views. Mr. Wallace tells you that with new frontiers open we should go ahead. Mr. Hoover, recently President, says liberty is challenged, we have gone too far.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, President, does not commit himself. In his mind, we are "on our way," but he does not say exactly whither. And he would turn around, if that should seem wise. But it was necessary to go somewhere, and do something to get away from 1929.

Near the Delaware avenue book store, in the window of a financial institution, was a pretty picture shown, of a father, mother and little child, sitting nicely balanced on top of this round earth. The sign reading, "The Top of the World," suggests a "thrift account." The world has turned many times since 1929, and some who thought they were "on top of the world," including perhaps that pretty family of three, have fallen off into the empty space of depression.

The father, mother, child and the rest of us might learn much from the three books by the three wise men, representing LEFT, RIGHT AND MIDDLE. But if they would come here and

SHE WILL NOT TRY TO GET LICENSE

By Associated Press

Los Angeles, Oct. 26—Ellen Wilson McAdoo isn't married, doesn't intend to obtain a license today, and doesn't know when she will marry.

The 19-year-old granddaughter of Woodrow Wilson returned home early today to deny she had eloped with Rafael Lopez De Onate, Philippine-born film actor.

She came back after leaving home at 11 a. m. yesterday without saying a word to anyone. She explained her absence by saying she and De Onte had been calling on friends. She said:

"I have no statement to make other than I made before. Our marriage plans are indefinite. I don't know when we will marry, but I don't think we will attempt to get a marriage license today in Riverside," she added.

"OFF," SAYS LAWYER

She has been threatened with disinheritance by both her mother and her father, Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, if she goes through with the wedding to the 38-year-old actor. Her parents are divorced.

They threatened to cut off her $10,000 annual allowance. De Onate reportedly earns only $1000 a year.

Miss McAdoo and De Onate had planned to return to Riverside today to obtain their marriage license.

The county clerk at Riverside, without saying who, if anyone, had asked him not to issue the license, said he would not give the couple a license until De Onate had conclusively proven he was not part Filipino. De Onate claims he was born of Spanish parents in Manila.

William H. Neblett, law partner of Senator McAdoo, declared the marriage was "definitely off—permanently off."

FEARED ELOPEMENT

While Miss McAdoo was absent from her home last night, Neblett said:

"It seems Ellen has made up her mind to do something foolish."

Mrs. Eleanor Wilson McAdoo, the mother, a daughter of President Wilson, was prostrate in bed as a result of the situation, Neblett said.

De Onate said:

"I still love Ellen, and I believe she still loves me. Other than that I see no reason to comment on the affair.

"Mr. Neblett may say all he pleases, but I do not believe he will succeed in alienating Miss McAdoo's affections."

'POOL' RAIDED ON STATE STREET

Boston's financial district was thrown into confusion this afternoon when the police pounced on an alleged gambling establishment, which, they said, was being maintained in the Stock Exchange Building at 53 State street.

Hundreds of persons were attracted to the scene as patrolmen from the Milk street station, under the direction of Sergeants Mark Madden, William J. Driscoll, John Laidlaw, Jr., and Cornelius O'Brien, staged the surprise raid.

Alexander [illegible] of Elm street, Wakefield, was arrested on a charge of setting up and operating a lottery, and some 75 Canadian Sweepstakes' tickets, as well as horse race betting slips were seized as evidence.

The aresting officers, however, admitted they were disappointed because one of the biggest figures in the city's "nigger pool" racket had slipped through their fingers a few minutes before they arrived.

The raid, it as said at Police Headquarters, is the first of a series designed to rid the business district of petty gambling rackets that mean a rich haul each wek for underworldling.

CURLEY PLEDGE TO CUT TAXES

By FRANK REILLY

A three-point program calling for discharge of Merton Brown, state insurance commissioner, and reduction of automobile insurance rates by one-third, discharge of members of the State Board of Tax Appeal, and abolition of dangerous railroad grade crossings, was announced today by James M. Curley, Democratic gubernatorial nominee.

The program will be put into effect during his first week in office as Governor of Massachusetts, Mr. Curley said.

He charged that during the past five years the members of the tax appeal board forced reductions of 400 million dollars in property valuations in Boston, with less than one per cent of that sum on homes. Continuing he said:

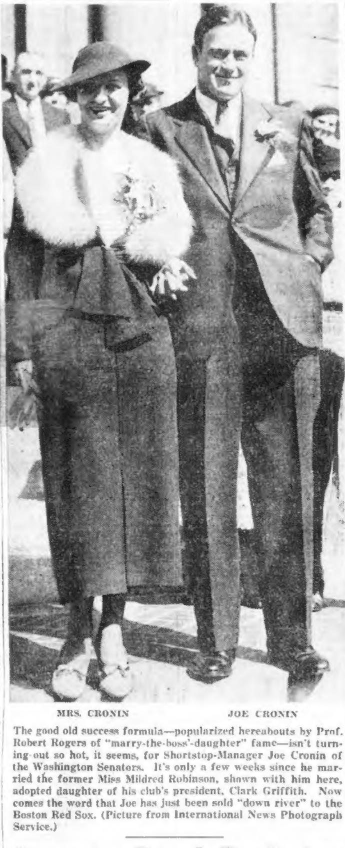
"I will remove the members of Rotch, a Republican, has been assistant state administrator under Carney since last March.

Wedding Boss' Daughter Did Not Aid Joe



MRS. CRONIN JOE CRONIN

The good old success formula—popularized hereabouts by Prof. Robert Rogers of "marry-the-boss'-daughter" fame—isn't turning out so hot, it seems, for Shortstop-Manager Joe Cronin of the Washington Senators. It's only a few weeks since he married the former Miss Mildred Robinson, shown with him here, adopted daughter of his club's president, Clark Griffith. Now comes the word that Joe has just been sold "down river" to the Boston Red Sox. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

Cronin Deal Refutes Prof. Rogers' Advice

With a very creepy feeling, Professor Robert E. Rogers, our own erudite columnist, must have locked his door firmly today and crept under his bed as a careful gesture when news came out of Washington affecting the boss' daughter's husband.

Now something, Dr. Rogers, must have gone wrong with the boss' daughter theory, because Joe Cronin, youthful manager of the Washington Senators—the ones without the whiskers—was sold up the river today to Boston's Red Sox.

THAT SAGE ADVICE

This sale would have been chronicled purely as a sports event if it had not been that Cronin, just one month ago tomorrow, was married to the daughter of the boss wh sold the famous shortstop and manager

PAY $150,000 AND LARY TO BRING STAR HERE

By Joe Cashman

Joe Cronin, lantern-jawed shortstop, has been signed to manage the Red Sox for five years, according to an announcement which burst out of the Red Sox front office this morning.

In exchange for Cronin went Lynford (Broadway) Lary and a large chunk of cash reported to be $150,000. Along with Lary and the aforementioned large chunk of cash went Stanley Bucky Harris to parts unkown.

The exact amount involved was not revealed. Eddie Collins announced, however, that a larger sum of money changed hands than ever before in any previous baseball trade, even larger than the Babe Ruth trade. Ruth was sold to the Yankees in 1919 for a sum said to have been $139,000.

Eddie Collins, who suddenly halted his hunting activities in South Carolina to consummate the deal, said: "Griffith appeared to be more interested in Cronin's welfare than in that of his ball club. Griffith was a bit upset because he was breaking his life-long rule against selling a ball player."

"We were not dissatisfied with Harris," continued Collins, "but we realized that the club needed a manager of Cronin's personality and fire. In paying the largest price we have ever known of for a ball player, we took into consideration that it really involved two men—Cronin, the manager, and Cronin, the player."

BABE NEVER CONSIDERED

Babe Ruth had never been considered for the Red Sox post, according to Collins, and he doubted that the great slugger would succeed Connie Mack as manager of the Athletics next season.

It was during the World Series that the name of Joe Cronin was first mentioned as possible manager of the Red Sox, and it was the fertile brain of Collins which conceived the idea, which seemed impossible of fulfillment.

"What can I do to wake up the Red Sox," Tom Yawkey asked Collins as they were watching

MRS. ROBINSON BARES HER STORY OF STOLL KIDNAPING

WOMAN TELLS OF FEAR FOR FUGITIVE MATE

By DAVID P. SENTNER

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

(Copyright, 1934, by International News Service.)

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 26—Mrs. Frances Robinson, facing a possible death sentence for kidnaping at the age of 23, told her story today in an exclusive interview from the county jail with International News Service.

She insisted upon her complete innocence.

She told how she was "treated badly" during her married life with her crack-pot husband, Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., hunted as the actual kidnaper of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll.

She confessed she was "pining" for her five-year-old baby, James.

In her first interview, Mrs. Robinson told how her husband had threatened her when she pleaded with him to release Mrs. Stoll after she had delivered the $50,000 ransom money. That was a week ago last Tuesday, in Indianapolis. She said:

HAD KNIFE HANDY

"I had a knife with me. I was prepared to resists going with him.

"I have always been afraid of my husband. From the start of our married life, he treated me badly. When he got mad he would slap me around. He is an eccentric and erratic person."

The 100-pound prisoner, indicted with her father-in-law, Thomas H. Robinson, Sr., for aiding young Robinson in the kidnaping, declared she had delivered the $50,000 ransom money to her husband from Nashville to Indianapolis, at the express suggestion of representatives of the Stoll family and authorities.

"When did you first hear of the kidnaping of Mrs. Stoll?" Mrs. Robinson was asked.

"I saw it in the morning paper the day after it happened," she replied.

"When did you first know Mrs. Stoll was held by your husband?"

"On Saturday, before her release on Tuesday. My husband telephoned me from Indianapolis. I was in my mother's home in Nashville.

Mrs. Robinson said that following a conference attended by representatives of the Stoll family and authorities, it was decided she be given the $50,000 ransom money to deliver to her husband in Indianapolis. She said:

"I was with my husband when he rented the Indianapolis apartment a few weeks before the kidnaping. He used the name of Thomas Kennedy. He told me he was using a new name because he wanted to start life anew and leave his old troubles behind him."

CARRIED RANSOM

The prisoner continued with her story of how she delivered the ransom money. She said she was driven to Guthrie, Ky., from Nashville by "an attorney" representing the Stoll family. Then she was given the $50,000 ransom money, she said.

"It was wrapped in paper and I put it in a suitcase," she said. "I was frightened at having so much money. I took a train and arrived in Terre Haute. Then I took a taxicab for Indianapolis and arrived there at 7 A. M. on Tuesday, October 16. I went to a hotel first and arrived at the apartment where Mrs. Stoll and my husband were at 9 A. M.

"He threatened to take me by force. He said he was going to tie up Mrs. Stoll and leave her behind in a closet. I pleaded with him, but was ready to use my knife on him to resist. Finally, he agreed to go away alone if we would promise not to leave the apartment for five hours. We agreed.

GAVE MRS. STOLL $500

"He gave $500 of the ransom money to Mrs. Stoll to take care of her expenses back to Louisville. Mrs. Stoll didn't have a pocketbook so she asked me to take care of it."

Then Mrs. Robinson was asked by the International News Service correspondent:

"What did Mrs. Stoll tell you—from the time you arrived in the Indianapolis apartment until the time the federal agents arrested you at Scottsburg, Ind., when you were returning toward Louisville with Mrs. Stoll?"

She answered:

"We talked of many things—first of getting some breakfast. She told me how glad she was to see me and that I had saved her life. Her whole attitude was cordial and friendly and happy."

Q.—Do you think Mrs. Stoll will testify in your behalf?

A—Yes.

Q—If you have definitely broken with your husband, do you contemplate a divorce if you are cleared at your trial?

A—At this time, it is impossible for me to say what I am going to do in the future.

Q—Are you completely innocent of the kidnaping charge?

A—Yes.

She added that reports the jailer had taken away her knife were inaccurate. She said:

"I voluntarily gave it to the authorities."

The prisoner talked about her baby. She declared:

"When my mother visited me here she told me he was well and fine and that made me very happy. He is a splendid boy with blue eyes and light hair. He is five years old. Of course, I am devoted to him and pine for him every day."

Mrs. Robinson said she was born in Nashville, Tenn., on March 28, 1911, and had attended Central High School in Nashville. She stated:

"I lacked a few months of graduating when I married. I met my husband through mutual friends in Nashville."

Mrs. Robinson is very slender, with dark unbobbed hair and hazel eyes. She keeps her fingernails meticulously manicured and shows excellent taste in her mode of dressing. She said she was interested in drawing, horse-back riding and swimming.

Gives First Stoll Details

Declaring she is completely innocent, Mrs. Frances Robinson, facing a possible death sentence in the Stoll kidnaping, gives first complete details of the abduction.

JAPANESE SEEK TO ELIMINATE NAVY RATIO

International News Service

London, Oct. 26 (INS)—After three days of jockeying by giving Britain and America only a foggy idea of her plan for a new naval agreement, Japan today presented to the British delegates some definite details of Tokio's proposals.

Rear Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto and Ambassador Tsuneo Matsudaira had their second talk with the British representatives, headed by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, at No. 10 Downing street.

GLOBAL TONNAGE PLAN

They had met with the British Tuesday, and the Americans Wednesday, and outlined Japan's demands for abolition of the 5-5-3 ratio, and substitution of a global tonnage on a basis of "equality of security."

Just what the structure of this "equality" was to be was not made known.

Irked by Japan's dilatory procedure, and suspicions that something was going on behind the scenes, Norman H. Davis, U. S. ambassador-at-large, conferred with Premier MacDonald and foreign Minister Sir John Simon yesterday.

It was believed that pressure was brought to bear on the Japanese to elucidate their program.

OPPOSED BY U. S.

Factors in the Japanese plan, which were believed to have been told to the British today, and which America opposes, include elimination of restrictions on submarines and cruisers, regarded as "defensive" vessels by Japan; a general cut in big ships, and a maximum total tonnage figure for all, that would not involve a ratio.

Another bilateral meeting between Japan and America, which will be a repetition of today's with the British, is expected before triangular conversations, sought by the Americans to hasten proceedings, may start.

Japs Would Cut Under Naval Treaty Limits

By Associated Press

Washington, Oct. 26—Authoritative sources disclosed here today the Japanese in their new naval proposals have set a maximum global tonnage figure lower than the existing tonnage permitted by the Washington and London treaties.

The figures set by the Japanese will not be made public, it was said, until there has been a general discussion on the subject.

The Japanese Navy experts desire the abolition of airplane carriers, battleships and large cruisers because they consider them offensive warships and believe that navies lacking such offensive war vessels would not attack any other nation.

The United States and Great Britain each have 15 battleships, while Japan has nine. Great Britain has six airplane carriers, and the United States and Japan four each.

Japanese sources here regarded it as extremely doubtful that the United States and Great Britain would agree to abolish offensive ships and hinted that Japan would be willing to compromise the question by agreeing to reduce the tonnage of offensive vessels, thus handicapping them as "offensive" weapons.

BOSTON FIGHTS 150 SHIP LINES

By Associated Press

Washington, Oct. 26—Representatives of the state of Massachusetts and the Boston port authority today filed with the Shipping Board a complaint against the Brocklebank Cunard Line and 150 other steamship companies, charging free storage service provided the port of New York was discriminatory against the port of Boston.

The complaint was presented by Assistant Attorneys General George B. Lourie and Edward T. Simoneau, on behalf of Attorney General Joseph E. Warner of Massachusetts.

They were accompanied by Walter W. McCoubrey, traffic manager of the Boston port authority.

The Massachusetts officials said the city of Boston, through Corporation Counsel Henry E. Foley, joined in the complaint and that the ports of Philadelphia, Norfolk and Baltimore were supporting Warner in the issue.

Lourie said the steamship companies named in the complaint were given free storage on their New York piers for unreasonable lengths of time on various commodities, and that the same companies made high charges for storage of the same commodities at Boston after a short period of time. Warner holds that this is an unfair and unreasonable practice, unduly prejudicial and discriminatory against the port of Boston.

The complaint sets forth the rates and practices in connection with import commodities at the Port of New York were robbing Boston of its rightful place as a port and depriving it of a vast volume of business to which it was entitled, and consequently were withholding employmentf rom citizens of Boston and Massachusetts.

INSUUL STOCKS 'KITING' BARED

By Associated Press

Chicago, Oct. 26 (AP)—Ten dollars, passed upward through four companies of Samuel Insull's utility system, emerged at the top, according to testimony in the Insull mail fraud trial today, as $518.62 by the process known as "pyramiding stock dividends."

A Department of Justice accountant, Wayne S. Murphy, described this profit system while testifying that millions of dollars in "paper income" was written on the books of the Corporation Securities Company, now under fire as a mail fraud scheme.

When an Insul corporation issued stock dividends, Murphy testified, it was the practice of the others receiving it to multiply the number of shares received by he current stock market quotation and put the total down as "income."

Prosecutor Leslie E. Salter called this "kiting."

It was a stock dividend by the Middle West Utilities company, which that company charged against itself at $10 a share, that grew to $518.62 said the accountant.

PWA to Ask Millions From Congress in Relief Jobs

By Associated Press

Washington, Oct. 26—The PWA quietly is paving the way for another huge appropriation for projects designed to create jobs in every part of the nation.

The Administration is certain, well informed persons said, to ask for more millions, perhaps billions. How much Congress will provide can be answered only with a guess.

The question of how much will be spent is linked, apparently, with future trends in private business activity.

President Roosevelt, though not mentioning PWA specifically, has said government spending and lending will taper off as soon as private initiative takes over the job.

MANY JOBS IN PROSPECT

His industrial recovery chief, Donald Richberg, said in New York yesterday a "clearly emerging" issue is whether private enterprise shall re-employ "four or five million willing workers" or whether government must try to do it. He said he preferred to have private resources do it.

The PWA is preparing to lay before Congress a list of operations which might be launched quickly if its coffers, once brimming with $3,700,000,000, are replenished.

A number of government agencies, accordingly, have been asked to speed up public works projects for which they have received funds already and to determine what future developments might stimulate employment.

PWA state engineers, an authoritative source said, also have been asked to turn in lists of new non-federal projects which would qualify for public works loans and grants.

ROOSEVELT IN WAR ON BONUS

By Associated Press.

Washington, Oct. 26—The Roosevelt administration will fight the new campaign for cashing the soldiers' bonus immediately.

That the struggle in the next Congress will be terrific few observers denied today. The movement for immediate payment of the adjusted service certificates gained new momentum when the American Legion advocated it yesterday at the Miami convention.

Administration men are expected to concentrate on preventing a "stampede" in the next Congress, which meets in January. Many observers feel that, if it comes to the veto point, the Senate, if not the House, will sustain the veto.

Bette Davis Back Home Wearing Hollywood Laurels

$15 Flivver Helps Hubby Buy New Auto For Long Drive East

There's nothing like a good hot cup of tea, especially after a 3000-mile drive home across the continent.

Bette Davis, now one of Hollywood's shining stars, but a few years ago just another little Newton high school girl, took both the drive and the tea.

She and her husband, Harmon O. Nelson, Jr., were back in Boston today for the second time since their wedding in 1932. Bette was visiting her aunt, Mrs. Myron Davis of 9 Joy street, Beacon Hill, where she enjoyed the tea.

She planned to see her father, too. He is Harlow M. Davis, a Boston patent attorney. He has a home at 117 Watson road, Belmont. And, said Bette, he would be glad to see her even if he once opposed her yearning for a movie career. She explained:

"When daddy first heard of my going into pictures, he didn't take to the idea at all. But since he has seen that I have succeeded, it has changed his mind."

Her father and mother are divorced, Miss Davis said. Mother lives in Hollywood.

The film star and her husband, whose family incidentally lives in Whitinsville, drove all the way from Los Angeles in a brand new high-powered, high-priced convertible roadster that they just bought. Bette said:

"Harmon turned in his $15 collegiate flivver as part payment on the new car."

She liked to think of Newton as her "old home town," Miss Davis remarked. It was at Cushing Academy in Ashburnham that she and her husband met. And of her school days she said:

"I had the best time of my life then, especially while I was going to Newton high school. That was in 1922-23 and 1924."

Miss Davis has just completed the picture "Border Town," co-starring with Paul Muni. Her next one is going to be with Edward G. Robinson, she said, but they haven't picked a name for it yet.

Hopkins Answers Mills on Relief

Washington, Oct. 26 (AP)—The camgaign prediction of Ogden Mills, former Secretary of the treasury, that 20,000,000 people would be on relief rolls by January, drew a caustic reply today from Henry L. Hopkins, the relief administrator.

Asked to comment on Mills statement, Hopkins, charging Mils with "politics" expresed the belief that the number on relief rolls this winter would be less than the combined number on civil works and relief last winter. He said civil works and relief reported a peak of 6,000,000 cases last winter.

CRONIN PROVES ADAGE FALSE

—President Clark Griffith of the Washington club.

It's more than five years now since Professor Rogers stood up in meeting, pulled out all the stops and advised seniors at Tech, where he teaches, to be a snob and marry the boss' daughter. With a twinkle in his eye, Professor Rogers said:

"Be a snob. You will find it is just as easy to marry the boss' daughter as the stenographer. Dress, speak and act like a gentleman and you will be surprised at the amount of murder you can get away with."

WHAT OF "ADOPTEES"?

Well, this was all very exciting and this utterance has dogged the good professor ever since—even to that Cape Ann haven where he listens to the whisperings of the sea in the summertime.

Of course, the brand new Mrs. Joe Cronin is the adopted daughter of the boss but Professor Rogers made no such fine line distinctions in his advice to the M. I. T. boys.

Detectives Lose Battle in 'The Big Knockover'

SYNOPSIS

The teller of this story—a private detective—feels "there's more trouble in the air" when Beno, a tipster-newsboy, was shot dead soon after Beno had tipped off the sleuth about "a caper" being "rigged for the Seaman's National" bank. Earlier that evening, the detective spotted several notorious crooks from various parts of the United States in San Francisco.

The next forenoon an organized mob (about 150 bandits) siezes and loots the aforementioned bank and the Golden Gate Trust Co., killing about 16 policemen, wounding about three times that many, murdering 12 bank clerks and bystanders, and getting away with loot "running into the millions." The thugs lost seven dead and 31 prisoners "most of them bleeding" in this BIG KNOCK-OVER.

A rigid police roundup and drastic third-degree follow, during which the narrator 'phoned the local office of his national detective agency, getting the help of Jack Counihan, a young and ambitious sleuth. Jack is assigned to "tail" a dapper young fellow—"a boy"—whom the narrator has seen nearby when Beno had been slain.

By Dashiell Hammett

Author of "The Thin Man"

CHAPTER IV

Jack pocketed his matches and went after the boy. I gave Jack a lead and then followed him. And then an interesting thing happened.

The street was fairly well filled with people, mostly men, some walking, some loafing on corners and in front of soft-drink parlors. As the young Armenian reached the corner of an alley where there was a light, two men came up and spoke to him, moving a little apart so that he was between them.

The boy would have kept walking apparently paying no attention to them, but one checked him by stretching an arm out in front of him. The other man took his right hand out of his pocket and flourished it in the boy's face so that the nickel-plated knuckles on it twinkled in the light. The boy ducked swiftly under threatening hand and outstretched arm, and went on across the alley, walking, and not even looking

ROCK BALLAST CUT OUT OF STOMACH

RATTLES LIKE CASTANETS

If this sort of thing keeps up, they're going to change the name of Mrs. Bruce Fernald's German shepherd dog to Ballast and equip his stomach with a zipper—and no wonder.

The dog, a three-year-old, has just had his stomach opened and plumbed for the removal of seven stones, each larger than a pigeon's egg, and if you know why a pup goes around swallowing stones, doctors at the Angell Memorial Hospital would like to have the answer.

These doctors wouldn't look at "Ballast" with such a narrow eye if the dog hadn't done the same thing before, although he started in a smaller way with stones not so large.

But beyond their puzzle as to why the dog eats stones is the doctor's other puzzle as to why he swallows just seven each time, this being the number he inhaled on the first occasion also.

In the first instance, because the stones were small, the dog was given an emetic and he disgorged them with a very wry expression.

This time when he was brought to the hospital by his owner, who lives at 221 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, he rattled like castanets and the operation was necessary.

Mrs. Fernald threatens to equip the dog with a fine-mesh gullet screen.

Mrs. Reinherz Drops Divorce Action

While Paul Reinherz, musical director of the Metropolitan Theater, announced that it was all a mistake and that he and his wife were very happy, Mrs. Reinherz went into Suffolk Probate Court and announced that she and her husband had been reconciled.

After hearing her plea, Judge Dolan dismissed the divorce petition in which she charged her mate with cruel and abusive treatment. The Reinherzs make their home on Englewood avenue, Brighton.

ROOSEVELT BOY'S LOVE

Eyes on Him at Cushing Party

Between Miss Barbara Cushing's debut and everybody watching how Miss Ethel duPont and Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., treat each other, the ballroom at the Ritz-Carlton is bound to be an intriguing spot this evening.

The party is really Miss Cushing's of course. She is a younger sister of Mrs. James Roosevelt and a daughter of Dr. Harvey Cushing, the brain surgeon.

But because rumors have continually linked the President's namesake son with the heiress to the duPont millions, much of the spotlight will naturally fall on this pair.

Not that anyone excep a real "insider" is going to get a chance to do any looking. No sir. Just 400 hand-picked socialite guests are going to the coming out party.

Miss duPont and the President's son met last spring at the heiress' debut in Philadelphia.

High School Ma'ams Giggle and Chew Gum in 'Class'

No Stay-Ins

DRS. COMPTON, WOOLLEY TALK

High school teachers from Middlesex County whispered, embroidered, read newspapers and chewed gum today during discussion of educational violations of classroom rules, not one stayed after "school."

The teachers, more than 2500 of them, attended sessions of the 80th annual convention of the Middlesex County Teachers' Association at the Hotel Bradford, Tremont Temple and the State House. At the same time, members of the Norfolk County Teachers' Association met at Ford Hall Forum.

The high school teachers, meeting at the Hotel Bradford, heard President Karl T. Compton of M. I. T. and Dr. Mary E. Woolley, president of Mount Holyoke College.

As Dr. Compton discussed the "Problems of School and Society," teachers who sat in the rear of the room took on the classroom habits of their pupils and introduced a few new "teachers-disturbing" methods.

But They Behave Under Stern Eye

One woman teacher embroidered, while another read a newspaper. Three others whispered about "she's remodeling the house." Other groups of feminine teachers whispered about the bargains they had seen in shop windows.

Teachers who sat in the front under the eye of the speaker and the association president, Dr. Clarence H. Dempsey, superintendent of Arlington schools, were model "pupils." They listened intently.

Dr. Compton compare the tactics of former President Hoover and President Roosevelt in approaching social and economic problems.

Dr. Compton declared that courses in training for public service shoud be inaugurated in the school system. He said:

"We shoud teach the students that they should seek office not as politicians, but as public servants."

Dr. Payson Smith, state commissioner of education, Dr. Herbert S. Weet of Rochester, N. Y., and Dr. Kirtley F. Mather of Harvard also addressed the teachers.

RIFT IS LAID TO JACK

MRS. EARL T. SMITH

ANOTHER VANDERBILT FAMILY SPLITS

New York, Oct. 26—Another family discord involving a Vanderbilt is beginning to make itself heard in exclusive circles.

Today it's Consuelo, whose marriage in January, 1926, to Earl E. T. Smith, was one of the season's most brilliant society events as the best people gathered in St. Patrick's Cathedral for the ceremony.

They have separated and are no longer living together in the sumptuous home which the bride's father, William K. Vanderbilt, gave them.

Mrs. Smith is there, but her husband has taken an apartment on Park avenue.

Mrs. Smith refused to discuss the reports of their separation, but admitted Smith was no longer in her home.

The first disagreement of the Smiths came to the public's notice a few years ago when Jack Dempsey was invited to their Southampton home as a house guest at the time of a charity boxing exhibition. Mrs. Smith made it plain the former champion would not be welcome. Dempsey settled it by declining Smith's invitation.

WEBSTER CAR IS HUNTED IN MAINE

HIS BROTHER VOICES FEAR

Dover-Foxcroft, Me., Oct. 26—Posses today were searching the woods near St. Francis, a little town on the Canadian border, in the hope of finding the automobile of the missing Robert S. Webster and his bride, June.

Should the car be found, authorities said, it will be definite indication that the Websters have been lost somewhere between Eagle Lake and St. Francis. That territory is the Allegash trail.

If the car is gone, it was thought that the Websters might have made the Allagash trip safely and met disaster later. The last seen of them was on October 9 as they left Eagle lake in a canoe.

ACCIDENT FEARED

Howard F. Webster, a brother of the missing man, who lives in Chestnut Hill avenue, Brighton, Mass., sent word to authorities that he is certain his brother and sister-in-law have met with an accident.

He said that th missing man was too well acquainted with the Allagash river and the trail to have become lost.

The Websters are now 12 days overdue, according to plans which they made. They expected to be home on October 14.

HAD PREMONITION

Her mother, for some reason, she said, she did not know at the time, had a premonition that the trip would bring trouble.

Warden Levi S. Dow, who has been directing the searching parties, said that even though the department of forestry airplane, piloted by Earl Crabbe, failed to find the missing couple yesterday, it would resume its search from the air today.

Warden Dow said that he and Pilot Crabbe would fly over sections they were unable to cover in their previous hunt.

CELTIC PAGEANT TO BE SHOWN IN BOSTON

Woven of quick tears and unquenchable laughter, and of glory, Ireland's history is to be portrayed in Boston next month in one of the most spectacular pageants ever conceived.

"The Pageant of the Celt," great historical production of Chicago's Century of Progress, is the vehicle.

The Boston Garden is the stage.

November 22, 23, 24 and 25 are the dates.

SPONSORED BY FUND

The sponsorship is the Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American.

The Christmas Basket Fund will share in the receipts, but no plea in behalf of sweet charity and the Yuletide spirit is necessary to focus public attention on the production.

Its presentation at Chicago's Soldier Field in August won it the acclaim of thousands as a magnificent spectacle of art and entertainment. Irish historians and critics the nation over hailed it for its accuracy as well as its beauty.

1500 IN THE CAST

More than 1500 men, women and children will be in the cast as actors, soloists, dancers, members of choir and orchestra.

All except 100 acting the principal parts will be residents of Greater Boston. The enrollment and training of many of these have begun. Elocution classes, dramatic and dancing school are supplying a majority of the vast personnel.

BENEDICT FITZGERALD

Benedict FitzGerald, supervisor of music in the Cambridge public schools and a noted authority on Irish music, will conduct the orchestra and chorus. He performed that task with enviable distinction at the two Chicago presentations.

Costumes made especially for the Chicago presentation and used but twice cost upward of $10,000.

The performance, requiring about two and one-half hours, will be given on the evenings of each of the four days with a matinee; also, on the final day, which falls on Sunday.

RICH HISTORY TOLD

Non-sectarian and non-political, "The Pageant of the Celt," reaching back across the centuries for 3500 years, beyond history into the golden haze of romantic legend, reveals to all of Celtic blood a bright glimpse of their rich racial heritage.

As a magnificent spectacle, accurate in its every detail, it will attract thousands in whose veins "the Gael's blood" may not run.

John V. Ryan, Chicago attorney and son of the late Francis J. Ryan, one of the greatest Irish scholars in America, is the author of "The Pageant of the Celt." He devoted more than two years to research work before writing the scenario.

Ryan is president of the Irish Historical Production, Inc. He is already in Boston with his retinue, preparing for the Garden production.

The stage for the pageant will be the entire "hockey floor" of the Boston Garden.

As the history of Ireland is enacted in dramatic sequence, no word is spoken except by the official narrator, whose voice is carried through the loud speakers, explaining the historical significance of the progressive scenes.

Girl's Hunt for Vagabond Fame Ends in Reunion in Maine

On her 24th birthday, Ardath Atkins of Los Angeles was reunited at Portland, Me., today with her mother and father, who carried on a 6000-mile transcontinental search for her following her disappearance in the mid-west more than a year ago.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clare Atkinson, who chugged out of Boston, penniless, in their old automobile yesterday, met their daughter at the Portland Y. W. C. A.

It was joyful reunion. The girl said she had decided to abandon her vagabond quest for literary material and it was presumed the three would return to California, although the means was not in evidence.

While daughter and parents were getting together in Portland, the Boston Evening American learned that Ardath's experiences in Boston, before going to Maine, included jobs in South Boston and Brighton. She also lived for a time in Cambridge.

She was given a home by Mrs Helen Devine of 176 D street, South Boston, in the latter part of August, after she had been obliged to get out of her Cambridge room because she had no money. While living with Mrs. Devine she often visited the library, explaining that she was writing a novel. At this time, while police were seeking her throughout the country, she lived within a stone's throw of a police station.

Mrs. Evelyn Miller of Tremont street said she obtained employment for Miss Atkinson in the home of Mrs. Samuel Wasserman in Washington street, Brighton, in September.

BODY OF FLOYD TRAVELS WEST

Kansas City, Oct. 26—The body of Charles ("Pretty Boy") Floyd arrived in Kansas City en route from East Liverpool, Ohio, to Sallisaw, Okla., where funeral services are scheduled to be held Saturday.

Between transfers from one train to another, the body was in the downstairs baggage room at the station, a short distance from the scene of the plaza massacre June 17 of last year, in which the government says Floyd participated.

Horse Killed in Crash

Two persons were injured and a horse was killed as a result of an auto accident on Dorchester avenue, Dorchester, early today.

According to police, an auto driven by Frank Lynch of Lindsey street, Dorchester struck a horse attached to a milk wagon as it was coming out of a yard on Dorchester avenue, knocking the horse to the ground, the driver from his seat, and breaking the shaft of the wagon.

Lynch was taken to the Fields Corner station, treated for lacerations, and allowed to go home.

BOY JAILED FOR DEATH NOTES

A 15-year-old West Newton boy today was convicted of writing a threatening extortion note and sentenced to the Lyman school by Judge Thomas Weston in a juvenile session of Newton court.

In declining a plea by the boy's father for probation, the court declared that threat notes were far too serious to be treated lightly at a time when kidnapings are prevalent.

He also ordered the police to investigate the boy's story that young girl was involved.

Recipient of the note was Mr David Hoar, 80, of 166 Webst street, West Newton. It w signed "Death."

The boy was freed in $100 bon pending appeal.

FITZGERALD TO TAKE STUMP FOR CURLEY

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald of Boston, who up to this time has taken no active part in the state campaign, will be on the stump for ex-Mayor James M. Curley, Senator David I. Walsh and the whole state ticket starting tomorrow night.

The former mayor was today assigned by Charles H. McGlue, chairman of the Democratic state Committee, to make his initial appearance at rallies on Saturday night in Warner Theatr Lawrence, and the Municipal Auditorium, Lowell. In both cities Fitzgerald is popular with the voters.

In addition to adding impetus and color to the Democratic campaign, the active participation of Fitzgerald means that the Boston democracy is united more solidly than it has been for years. Past differences have been submerged in the determination to bring about a decisive vote of confidence in President Roosevelt and his policies the main issue of the campaign.

LEADERS ON STUMP

The list of Boston leaders speaking in behalf of the Democratic candidates include Congressman John W. McCormack, District Attorney William J. Foley, former State Senator Joseph J. Mulhern, Congressman John J. Douglass, Representative John P. Higgins, former Governor's councillor James H. Brennan, and Councillors John Dowd, Joseph McGrath, and John I. Fitzgerald.

At the request of Councillor Fitzgerald, arrangements have been made for the appearance of Curley at the Hendricks Club, founded by the late Martin Lomasney, on Sunday afternoon preceding election day.

Former Mayor William E. Weeks of Everett, head of the New Deal Republican headquarters for Curley at 22 Province street, stated today that the first of a series of rallies will start there tomorrow noon. Mayor Curley is scheduled to be in attendance.

PECORA TO SPEAK

Prominent among the new supporters of Curley is Elizabeth Sears Pratt of the Copley Plaza Hotel.

Ferdinand Pecora, cross examiner of bankers for a United States banking committee, who put 20 of the partners of J. P. Morgan and Company on the stand, and now associated with the Securities Commission, will be the guest of the Curley Italian-American League when he comes here to participate in the campaign for Walsh, Curley and the Democratic ticket.

He will speak at a rally in Boston Garden on the Sunday before election. Pecora has been a Democrat since the days of the Bull Moose movement.

The Italian American League has engaged Faneuil Hall for its first large rally next Wednesday night. The League now has 90,000 members throughout the state. Joseph A. Tomasello will be chairman of the meeting. Former Mayor Curley, Senator Walsh, Dr. Joseph A. Santosuosso, Democratic nominee for secretary of state, and the balance of the state ticket will be among the speakers.

Simon E. Hecht, former chairman of the overseers of the public welfare department, has notified Curley that he will vote for him for governor. Hecht, with the exception of voting for Curley for mayor, has always voted the Republican ticket.

Watt Assails Bank 'Link' To Politics

Legislation looking toward an investigation into alleged activities of Boston bankers in Massachusetts politics will be sought by Robert J. Watt, secretary-treasurer and legislative agent of the Massachusetts State Federation of Labor, he declared today.

"I have already made it clear that organized labor opposes Gaspar Griswold Bacon (Republican candidate for governor) as a candidate of privilege and property rights," said Watt in his statement, "but I had never conceived that Bacon and the bankers would expose themselves by such a blatant exposure of dictatorship as demonstrated by the records.

"If Gaspar Bacon is willing to accept such sinister assistance, I charge he has not right to hold public office in Massachusetts."

350 CLUB FETES CURLEY SUNDAY

Boston's 350 Club will give a reception, tea and musicale for former Mayor James M. Curley, Democratic candidate for governor, next Sunday at 4 p. m. in the Hotel Touraine, with James Roosevelt, son of the President, in attendance.

Mrs. Edward Goode will preside and Miss Mary Curley, daughter of the former mayor and honorary president of the 350 Club, will be a guest.

The list of patrons and patronesses includes Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt, Mrs. Emile Coulon, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stewart, Thomas Glynn, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas O'Connor, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hurley, Joseph Timilty, Mr. and Mrs. John Prendeville, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tomasello, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Tomasello, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Crosby, Dr. and Mrs. Michael McGarty, Professor and Mrs. Robert E. Rogers, Mrs. Thomas Goode, Judge and Mrs. Emil Fuchs, General and Mrs. Edward L. Logan and Professor and Mrs. Frank L. Simpson.

Miss Florence M. Hurley of 180 Pond street, Jamaica Plain, is chairman of the committee and has charge of the ticket sale.

$1000 Bequeathed Benjamin S. Peck

Taunton, Oct. 26—There are many cash bequests in the will of Lura R. P. Weaver, late of Somerset which has been offered for probate by her nephew, Frederick S. Clarner of that town, who is given the residuary estate and $700.

Other bequests are as follows: Emma S. Collins, Worcester, $1000 and wrist watch; Howard C. Peck, Worcester, brother, $1000; Benjamin S. Peck, Cambridge, brother, $1000; to a number of nieces and nephews, $500 each; Emma B. Buffington, sister-in-law, $1000, and South Somerset M. E. church, $500.

Police Just Watch Practice "Battle"

Police, summoned by timid residents in the neighborhood of M. I. T. arrived in a hurry to find that the disturbance was a preliminary to the annual class battle between the freshmen and the sophomore. The battle confined itself to the college property, and the police confined themselves to watching the tax appeal board during my first week in the office of Governor. Less than one per cent of the abatements ordered by them were on residential property. The poor man pays the increased taxes loaded upon him as a consequence of abatements granted to the wealthy property owners. The burden will in the future rest where it justly belongs.

"Automobile insurance will be reduced by one third through the removal of Merton Brown. He also will be deposed during my first week as Governor.

"I will abolish every dangerous grade crossing in Massachusetts in order to protect the traveling public and to provide jobs for the unemployed.

"I believe that every man in Massachusetts is entitled to employment and at compensation sufficient to provide every necessity for his family. If necessary I believe that the working week should be reduced to 30 hours, but with no reduction in pay. Let us put an end to unemployment in this state and in the nation.

SCORES BACON AIDS

"The bankers have done enough damage to this country. We cannot now elect as governor of Massachusetts a representative of the House of Morgan."

Curley took occasion today to criticize persons who claim to be Democrats who have joined the Gaspar Bacon gubernatorial campaign committee. He said:

"Santa Claus is appearing a little before Christmas this year and is distributing presents to purchasable Democrats. Santa is not wearing the customary white whiskers, but his little black bag is very much in evidence."

The outstanding heroes of the United States army and navy were campaigning today for Curley. Joseph Newhall of Saugus, 99, commander of General E. W. Hinks Post, G. A. R., of that town, and one of its two surviving members, placed 100 letters in the mails, urging Republican friends to support the Curley candidacy.

VETERAN FOR CURLEY

At the same time Joseph P. Reilly of Walnut street, Salem, who was a member of the crew of the U. S. S. Nashville during the Spanish-American War and was decorated with the Congressional Medal for Honor for extraordinary heroism, called upon all war veterans esiding in Essex County to join with him in a drive to carry every community of that district for Mr. Curley.

Commander Newhall's communication to his Republican friends read in part:

"I voted for Abraham Lincoln and, if God lets me live, I will vote for James M. Curley on November 6. The spirit that animated Lincoln is the same that now lives in the heart and mind of the man who will make the greatest governor in the history of this Commonwealth—James M. Curley."

Mr. Curley will speak in Westwood Town Hall, Red Men's Hall, North Attleboro, in the auditorium of Attleboro High School, Odd Fellows Hall, Taunton, and City Theater, Brockton, tonight.

ESPECIALLY FOR THE STUDEBAKER

There may not be a blizzard next week. But then again, there may. You can't tell what Old Man Winter has up his sleeve. That's why it's wise to think about protecting your Studebaker now.

Look on your dealer's chart and see just how little it costs to give yourself the satisfaction of dependable, winter-long protection against freeze-ups. Remember these important Eveready Prestone advantages: No freeze-up. No odor. No damage to car finish. Protection against rust.

The makers of the Studebaker approve Eveready Prestone. It's all ANTI-FREEZE . . . no water. One shot lasts till Spring. Won't damage the car finish. Don't confuse it with alcohol or glycerine.

Based on a twenty-year average, freezing weather reaches Boston about October 24th.

CURLEY CALLED 'OPPORTUNIST'

Former Mayor Curley, Democratic candidate for governor, was characterized as a "political opportunist seeking to gain office through the popularity of the President," by Lieutenant-Governor Gaspar G. Bacon, the Republican opponent.

Speaking at his campaign headquarters in Beacon street, Bacon compared Curley's campaign with that of Upton Sinclair, the Democratic nominee in California, whose defeat has been asked by Joseph P. Tumulty, who was secretary to the late President Woodrow Wilson.

"Curley, in his previous campaigns for office," said Bacon, "used the popularity of the then man of the hour, and these tactics were adopted because he himself has not sufficient strength nor statesmanship to win him the position he sought."

A. G. Mather Is Father at 63

Famous a generation ago as an Olympic athlete and holder of several world's records, including the shot put, Arthur G. Mather of Ashland street, Medford, today is receiving additional congratulations from another source, for Mrs. Mather has presented her husband with a daughter, born at Lawrence Memorial hospital.

Mather was the model for Kitson's world famous "Minute Man's" statue on Lexington Green. He is now in his sixty-third year. His wife is twenty-four years his junior.

Goodwin Wins Votes with Pension

Endorsement by Frank A. Goodwin, independent candidate for governor of the Townsend Plan of Old Age Pensions, is winning him many pledges of support, it was announced today at his headquarters.

At his headquarters in the American House, thousands of hand-bills, explaining the plan, are being prepared for distribution.

Persons more than 60 years of age would be paid a pension of $200 a month under the Townsend Plan, on condition that the money be spent within 30 days. It is claimed by Goodwin that the plan already has the endorsement of Republican leaders in California.

Medford Licenses May Be Illegal

Dump licenses which have been the source of controversy for several years in Medford, may all be declared illegally granted, it developed when City Solicitor John E. Howard ruled that dump permits should be issued by the board of aldermen and not by the board of health. All existing permits were issued by the Health authorities.

ELECT CURLEY, FILENE URGES

Edward A. Filene, Boston merchant, one of the nation's most prominent business men and an economist of international reputation, today gave his support to James M. Curley

In a radio address last night from Station WNAC, Filene called for the election of former Mayor Curley as:

"A vote for the abolition of unemployment and poverty and a vote for the achievement of real human liberty, not only in our political but in our economic life."

Filene declared that only by voting for Curley can the electorate voice its approval of Roosevelt's program of recovery. He said:

"We know he is not a mere rider on the Roosevelt bandwagon, seeking to obtain office by lip support of the President."

Promotion Seen for Maj. Mulcahy

At a testimonial dinner given for Major George F. A. Mulcahy at the Hotel Bradford, the suggestion was made that his work as master of the Suffolk County house of correction should shortly entitle him to promotion to a high post in the service of the state.

More than 600 friends, in official positions in the federal, state, city and county governments praised his work on the island, and openly stated that further promotions in penal service were assured.

MEXICO CHURCH BAN GROWS

By International News Service

Mexico City, Oct. 25—While violent opposition to the government's efforts to stamp out clerical power grew today, Archbishop Pascual Diaz, head of the Catholic church in Mexico, summoned his flock to use "all legal means" to defend their rights.

This followed a ban imposed on priests by six more states, Mexico, Chiapas, Quertaro, Guerrero, Chiahuahua, and Colima. A seventh, Aguas Calientes, limited priests to five—one to each 30,000 of population.

Minor riots were reported from several points against the action of the authorities, together with the government's plan to educate children along socialistic lines.

Archbishop Diaz repudiated the accusation of former President Plutarco Elias Calles that Catholics were scheming to revolt.

Dreyfus Describes Romance of News

Carl Dreyfus, publisher of the Boston Evening American, last night told more than 200 members and guests of the Boston University Evening Division Jewish Club that sectarianism should be eliminated from college organizations.

Speaking at the college of business administration, Mr. Dreyfus described the romance of the newspaper.

Girl Condemned to Death Ax Sighs for Gayety

By Universal Service

Paris, Oct. 26—Violette Mozier, 19, belle of the cheap dance halls, who is awaiting death on the guillotine for murder of her father, is longing today for the bright lights of her late gay little world as she sits staring dumbly at the dingy bulb burning on the ceiling of her narrow cell.

Violette's high-heeled dancing slippers have been taken away from her with her cheap gawky clothes and her curling iron, lipstick and rouge.

A drab little figure in her coarse, brown skirt and ugly prison jacket she sighs as she looks at her little feet in the ill-fitting prison slippers—never to dance to gay music again.

Morosely, she waits for the day when, even her present garments will be taken away from her and she will walk with a slow and measured tread toward the punishment that awaits her under the great knife—barefooted, clad only in a skirt and her head covered with a black veil.

For that is the costume provided by French law for patricides. In this garb she shall stand upon the scaffold, exposed to public view while an official reads aloud to the people the sentence, "after which the condemned shall then be executed to death."

Violette is not sorry she killed her father. She gave him poison in a wine glass; she said he had forced her for six years to submit to his embraces.

Her mother, found struggling between life and death beside the dead father, she had meant to kill too, Violette said.

The mother, recovered, begged for mercy for her child, but the court accepted the prosecutor's argument that Violette had killed her father in order to inherit his money and be free from surveillance.

Jewry Plans Poll to Solidify Ideas

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—An effort to solidify Jewish opinion in the United States towards a solution of the problems of Jewry is being planned today by the American Jewish Congress.

The plan calls for a nation-wide election next April 28 for a new Jewish Congress. A similar poll was taken in 1917 and its effect, Jewish leaders say, was instrumental in assuring minority rights in the Versailles treaty. The American Jewish Congress was born as a result of the 1917 vote.

Frankfurter Guest at White House

Washington, Oct. 26—President Roosevelt held a luncheon conference with Felix Frankfurter, dean of Harvard Law School, and Sam Zemurray, of New Orleans, an official of the United Fruit Company.

NEW JAPANESE SHIP ARRIVES

The new Japanese freighter Nagaru Maru of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha Line, first of six new sister ships constructed at the Yokohama Dockyard Co., Japan, for the Japan-New York-Boston service, arrived today, docking at the Army Base, South Boston.

She is a motorship of 9000 tons, has a maximum loaded speed of 15½ knots an hour and a cargo capacity of 13,500 tons. After loading 500 tons of cargo the vessel will leave tomorrow for Japan. She will be followed here by the Noto Maru, Nako Maru, Naruto Maru, Moshiro Maru and Norjima Maru.

Pleas for Clothes Bare Tragedy

Tragedies, one by one, are revealed to the Swap Editor upon receipt of the daily mail.

There is the case of a mother who writes in pleading for clothes for her 2½ year old son and giving the address of a kind friend. Her parents have disowned her and she doesn't wish to reveal her identity.

Then there is the distressing circumstance of a mother with a 3 weeks old baby who has one blanket to wrap it in and no clothes.

SHOES NEEDED

The same mother has a daughter of 17 months who is beginning to walk but has no shoes.

And there are others—a mother from East Boston needs a winter coat size 16 and stockings for her daughter. She has 8 girls and 2 boys and needs clothes for them all. A women in Cambridge asks for a winter coat for a girl of 16; dresses and sweater for girl 7; coats for boys 13 and 15; shoes size 6 for girl; house dress size 8; man's undrewear size 38 or 40; and shirts size 42.

Another mother from Quincy wishes baby's blankets and sweaters, as well as shoes sizes 5 and 8 for little girls.

BOYS REQUIRE CLOTHES

A woman in Roxbury needs shoes sizes 5½ and 6. One from Roxbury is without a winter coat. She wears size 46.

Still we hear from another mother who has boys ranging from 3 to 14 and is lacking clothes for them all.

The unselfishness of motherhood is painted very strongly in all these letters. Always their first thought is for the little ones.

And now for the straight "Swaps": A cook stove for a ladies' coat, size 48; an electric radio for a painting and girl's clothing, size 14, sweaters, a suit and blouses; and a high chair for a sport coat, size 14.

Joe—This is a splendid opportunity for you to buy your next car through the Annual Used Car Sale now running in the Classified Columns of the American and Advertiser.

MOTHER SAVES BABY AT FIRE

Brockton, Oct. 26—Less than a minute before flames burst through a closet door in the bedroom on the second floor of her home on Newton avenue, Mrs. Hugh O'Donnell snatched her 15-month-old son, Edward William O'Donnell, from his crib and carried him to safety.

Mrs. O'Donnell was working in the kitchen when she smelled smoke. She rushed upstairs just in time to make the rescue. An overheated furnace caused the blaze which destroyed the entire bedroom.

SPEER THREATS INVESTIGATED

Northfield, Oct. 26—Scores of anonymous letters received by state police investigating the Elliott Speer murder are being closely checked, it was learned here today, since two threaten Lieutenant Joseph Ferrari with death.

Most of the letters are from cranks or jokesters, police said. Nevertheless, because of the importance of the case, every letter is carefully scrutinized and investigated as far as possible.

The threat letters warn Ferrari to "keep your nose out of this or you'll get the same thing (as Dr. Speer)." It ends with the remark "The gun is still working."

The greatest event of its kind in the year — the Annual Used Car Sale, is now running in the Automobile-for-Sale columns of the American and Advertiser.

EX-STARS OF HOLLYWOOD IN $7.50 PER DAY ECLIPSE

Los Angeles, Oct. 26—There's always something that plucks at your heart strings when you hear of a former favorite, who used to bask in the warm sun of public adulation, being reduced to husks and hardship.

Movie stars who soared to fame in the silent films, only to slip into obscurity and, eventually, poverty with the advent of talking pictures offer one of the most startling examples of seuch precipitous descent down the ladder of fortune.

$7.50 PER DAY

Today in Hollywood, innumerable actors and actresses who once jammed the movie houses, who rode to work in shiny limousines, and spent with a lavish hand a week's wage that would have been an annual salary for many a hard-working movie fan, are in poverty.

Helen Chadwick

Alice Lake

Gertrude Astor

Bessie Barriscale

Frank Mayo, Alice Lake, Gertrude Astor and Helene Chadwick are cases in point. Each of these was once a headliner. Each commanded a salaryof eye-opening proportions. Each was wont to see his or her name in electric lights.

Today those same artists are working for $7.50 a day, and glad of the payslip. They are doing mob-scene work, "the populace cheers" sort of acting, in the United Artists' filming of "The Mighty Barnum." In the same mob can be found Naomi Childers and Florence Turder, stars of other days.

Franklin Farnum, once one of the best pulling melodramatists, is today laying a bit "Colllege Rhythm."

HAVE SMALL PARTS

Bessie Barriscale and Lloyd Hughes have been awarded small parts in "The Man Who Reclaimed His Head" at Universal.

Mary McLaren is at M-G-M in "Evelyn Prentice," and not very prominent in the cast, while Addie McPhail, Roscoe Arbuckle's wife, returns to the same lot in "Forsaking All Others."

Artists of days gone by, who once worked for salaries in four and five figures a week, now are working for—to use the current phrase—coffee and cake.

BANKS PROMISE U. S. AID

By Associated Press

Washington, Oct. 26—A pledge of full cooperation in the recovery campaign was made personally to President Roosevelt toray by the officers of the American Baners Association.

Rudolf S. Hecht, new president of the association, told the President the bankers were prepared and anxious to lend money to business.

"The banks want to lend," said Hecht.

"We are going through with the program of cooperation. Of course, the bankers can't lend if business does not borrow but the bankers are making it known that they are willing to do their part."

Sleepless Handy Man Eyed by Doubting Doctors

Isaac Wilbur Small, the 64-year-old odd-jobs man of Orleans, may have been sleepless for a year, as he claims, but Greater Boston doctors looked upon his claim today with a very questioning eye.

It is Isaac's claim that he decided a year ago that he didn't need sleep—and he just hasn't gone to bed since, taking only a cat-nap now and then.

His loss of sleep does not affect him, he declares, and he does a day's work just as snappily as he ever did.

Well!

Dr. Henry J. Bagat of the City Hospital staff, for one, is skeptical.

"I don't believe such a thing is possible," he said. "Even if he went three or four days without sleep it would react on his nervour system. I think somebody's trying to kid the public."

Dr. Thomas Morton Gallagher, medical examiner in Middlesex county and an old-time athlete, was equally dubious.

"I don't know how he does it and retains his mental makeup," said Dr. Gallagher. "I've seen an over-trained man who didn't sleep for three weeks during the football season, and I've seen many nervous women who got along with only two or three hours during the night for an interval, but to go on unendingly—it's beyond my comprehension. He would be long since insane or dead. It may be true, but there's a question."

Dr. Martin Spellman of Commonwealth avenue declared:

"It's been proved in the past that normal persons cannot go without sleep for any length of time. Personally, I don't believe the Orleans story. If such a thing should be true, especially where he says he is able to go out and do a day's work, he is a medical marvel and scientists would like to see him."

NAZI JOB BUBBLE IS ABOUT TO END, SAYS KNICKERBOCKER

Nearly 3,000,000 formerly jobless workers have been given employment under the Nazi regime in Germany and vast increases in production give the surface aspect of a boom. But conservative business elements believe that the bubble must some time break, H. R. Knickerbocker, noted foreign correspondent of International News Service, writes in the fifth article of his new series: "Democracy Versus Dictatorship."

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER

International News Service Staff Correspondent

Berlin, Oct. 26—National Socialism has given jobs to nearly 3,000,000 workers formerly jobless. The national income from wages and salaries is rapidly growing. The volume of industrial production is only 20 per cent less than the highest post-war level in the boom of 1928-1929.

On the surface it looks like a boom now. If this development could be maintained, Nazi Germany could afford to whistle at its lost foreign trade and scoff at its critics.

The jobless man whom the Nazis have given a job might think liberty well lost for a weekly pay envelope.

TROUBLE CLOUDS GATHER

But already in the midst of the apparent boom, omens of trouble are gathering fast. Conservative business elements in this country agree with many foreign critics that the bubble must some time break.

Briefly put, the reason is as follows: the Nazis were to Germany like a shot in the arm. At the end of 1932, Germany lay dormant. She lay in the trough of the world economic crisis.

Normally, without the Nazis, she would have shared the upswing in the world business that has touched almost every country in the world and lifted Great Britain back within a shadow of prosperity.

But just at the moment when Germany had the most unemployment, the least business, along came the Nazis, and overnight roused the country to frantic activity. The Nazi doctor made the sick man jump out of bed and do handsprings.

WORK FOR ALL

Factories were forbidden to discharge another man, were ordered to take on more. Literally almost overnight, with full crews, the industrial machine of Germany, matchless on this continent, began to work practically full time.

On its side, the government appropriated 6,000,000,000 marks and spent 1,500,000,000 marks for public works. It created a vast voluntary labor service with regiments of young men in uniforms for reclamation and similar work.

But the bulk of the money expended to create employment came from private industry, and by far the greatest number of new jobs were "regular" jobs in factories. Out of the 2,500,000 newly employed men, 1,800,000 were regularly employed and only 700,000 by the government's make-work scheme.

The money to meet payrolls came chiefly from the reserves of industry, and from loans. The British Department of overseas trade estimates that in 1935 the employers of Germany spent around 5,000,000,000 marks to "make work" compared to the government's 1,500,000,000.

THE CATCH APPEARS

Does this not seem to be a healthy development? At any rate it should satisfy the "spend and get rich" school. But now the catch appears.

Under the Nazi whip, German industry went back to work at almost boom level and kept going faster. In the first five months of this year industrial production jumped another 29 per cent.

Manufacture of consumption goods has reached the post-war high level of 1928. Still the tempo increases for the aim is to put back to work every man of the 2,500,000 still jobless.

The institute of business research gives the gross value of industrial production in June, 1934, as 4,350,000,000 marks against 3,350,000,000 in June 1933. At this rate the next 12 months production would be worth 52,000,000,000 marks or 12 thousand billion marks more than in the previous 12 months.

This is a grandiose record but the total wages and salaries, the total earned income in Germany, at the most favorable possible estimate for the next 12 months, can not be over 500 marks per head of the population.

TOO MUCH GOODS

Where is this flood of goods going?

The answer is that the extra production is going into warehouses. They are groaning as never before with tens of thousands of tons of goods that can not find a market.

Germany differs fundamentally from the United States in that we can contemplate the loss of our foreign market without the fear of disaster.

But while we export perhaps eight per cent of our total production, Germany even in 1932, just before the Nazis came to power, was still exporting 26 per cent of her total production.

Today she is producing at a rate which would require her to export at least a quarter of all the goods she is making.

It works out with mathematical accuracy that with her present level of around 50,000,000,000 marks yearly of industrial production, she should export around 12,500,000,000 marks a year, and that is almost exactly the amount she did export in 1929.

But she is actually exporting about 4,000,000,000 marks a year.

To foreign observers here it appears there may be two alternatives: First deflation, that is, a break in prices, with bankruptcies, fall in production and renewed unemployment.

Second, inflation, with continued employment, but with all classes of the population reduced to an inferior standard of living, and with uncertain political consequences.

Nazis retort that they will reform their entire industrial machine and manufacture exclusively for Germans, not for export. For foreign raw materials they will substitute their chemical inventions.

Tomorrow — Knickerbocker tells how Nazi Germany has abolished strikes.

MORRO LICENSE COURT CHANGED

By Universal Service

New York, Oct. 25—Whether licenses of the Morro Castle's officers will be revoked will be decided by two members of the New Haven Board of Steamboat Inspectors, Captain Karl C. Nielsen, local inspector of hulls, revealed.

Decision on the officers' licenses was to have been made by members of the New York board but this plan was changed on protest of Captain John F. Milliken, chief of the united licensed officers.

Meanwhile it was disclosed that as an aftermath of the Morro Castle disaster liners of the United Fruit Co. are now employing two retired city firemen, with chief petty officer ratings, on each cruise ship.

TAG---YOU'RE IT---IF YOU ARE A TROUT

LOOK-BILL-
I GOT A LOW NUMBER THIS YEAR!
TP

Not to be outdone by motor-driving humans who already are under a new tagging system brown and rainbow trout in Massachusetts are having their tagging method changed.

While many motorists consider paying the new $3—$5—$10 assessments is a painful operation, the trout actually are undergoing surgical operations in their tagging department.

Raymond J. Kenney, director of the division of fisheries announces Biologist J. Arthur Kitson and a member of the staff of the United States bureau of fisheries are selecting trout from among the thousands about to be stocked in various streams.

A small incision is made in the abdomen of the fish and a tiny rubber tag inserted. This tag bears a number.

When and if these tagged fish are caught the fisherman reports his catch. It then will be possible to gain some idea of how the stocked fish thrive and where they wander.

The fish experts expect to learn many things about the fish.

RICIN SUICIDE TERMED FAKE

The rare poison "ricin" which has no antidote failed to kill John L. Bauer, Harvard student, for the best of reasons, attendant physicians believe. Bauer failed to take the poison.

Girl's Heroism Told in Courage Contest

Are women the more courageous sex?

Do men shrink in time of danger or do they become master of the situation and save the lives of others?

Scores of letters are pouring in daily telling of incidents where a man or woman proved to be the braver. Cash prizes will be awarded for the best letters in this contest, which closes Saturday night.

Just write to the Courage Editor of the Boston Evening American stating your opinion on this vital question and tell of an incident to back your belief.

You have either seen or heard of an emergency, where lives were saved because of the heroic action of some person.

Was it a man or woman?

A first prize of $15 will be awarded for the best letter, $10 for the next best, $5 for the third best and five $1 prizes for the next five.

Today's mail was heavily in favor of the women. Many tales of their heroism and quick thinking in the face of death or injury were told.

U. S. Sandvick, of Bowdoin street, Cambridge, tells of the bravery of a young girl. The letter reads:

"A girl and four men who were out sailing were caught in a squall and upset. For eight hours they were in the cold water hanging on to the overturned boat.

"During the whole time, the girl, laughed, jested or sang, and never let down one second.

"When the exhausted castaways were finally picked up by a passing steamer, the men said that her indomitable spirit alone had made it possible for all to come safely through."

Remember tomorrow is your last chance. Awards will be announced November 1.

FARLEY BLUSHES IN CHAGRIN OVER HIS SINCLAIR O. K.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, Oct. 26—The ruddy, genial face of Postmaster General James A. Farley was a trifle redder than usual today—all because of California's boiling political situation, which finds Upton Sinclair, the reclaimed Socialist, trying to ride into the governorship on the back of the Democratic donkey.

The [illegible] Some of them have been aided in more material ways. But not Sinclair.

It is true that Sinclair made a pilgrimage to the summer White House at Hyde Park and conferred [illegible] with President Roosevelt some weeks ago. After that [illegible] Sinclair [illegible] he was "delighted" with his reception [illegible] from Mr. Roosevelt emanated nothing but silence.

FARLEY LIKE CLAM

Taking his cue from his chief [illegible] Democratic [illegible] about Sinclair and the EPIC plan for saving California.

But the genial chairman reckoned without the ponderous and efficient machinery of the Democratic national committee, which he built up and of which he is the engineer in charge.

It seems that a form letter was rigged up by the national committee intended for general distribution in behalf of Democratic candidates for office. The letter was carefully phrased with blank spaces left for the insertion of the names of states and candidates. It was [illegible] part of the routine business of patting candidates on the back and appealing for Democratic support.

Some one, it appears, forgot to tell the stenographers whose business it was to fill in the names of states and candidates to omit California.

So in the natural course of events, California was typed in, also the names of Senator Hiram Johnson, who is running for re-election on both Republican and Democratic tickets—and Upton Sinclair. The letters were duly sent out to "key" men in California, as in other state.

WHAT OF POSTSCRIPT?

Such at least is the unofficial explanation of [illegible] Farley's endorsement of Upton Sinclair and his bizarre campaign for the governorship.

There is no official explanation because the usually affable postmaster general declines to discuss it at all. He will discuss Democratic candidates and chances in 47 states. But mention California, which of course means mentioning Sinclair, and the loquacious Farley becomes as silent as the Sphinx.

It may be that the unofficial explanation of the Farley letter is wrong, and that despite the lack of public support accorded Sinclair by the administration, Farley [illegible] his quiet way [illegible] Democratic chances in California.

There are even rumors that the organization-minded national chairman appended a postscript to the California letter in his own handwriting. But those rumors can't be confirmed, because nobody around Democratic headquarters will discuss them—or discuss California at all.

Farley returned to Washington today from a mountain resort. His silence concerning the California campaign was even more dense than ever.

He [illegible] at the White House and discussed "a number of matters" with the President. Included in those matters was the California situation and presumably the mix-up about the letter, but Big Jim [illegible] upon [illegible] the White House. He said:

"No comment. Nothing to say at all."

Sinclair Refuses to Quit Gubernatorial Race

By International News Service

Los Angeles, Oct. 26—California's red-hot gubernatorial race was on [illegible] as a colorful three-way political battle, it appeared today.

Upton Sinclair, EPIC standard-bearer and Democratic nominee, declined the suggestion of Raymond L. Haight, Progressive-Commonwealth candidate, that he retire in the latter's favor.

Following a day of denials Sinclair and Haight admitted a fusion of forces against Gov. Frank F. Merriam, Republican nominee, had been discussed at a secret meeting in Sacramento.

Haight said:

"Mr. Sinclair and I met in the Sacramento Valley yesterday. He frankly, fully and voluntarily discussed with me the difficulties of winning the election and the advantages which the progressive cause would secure through the withdrawal. Naturally his withdrawal and his obligations toward the progressive movement are a matter of his own conscience."

Sinclair said:

"Mr. Haight suggested at a conference in Sacramento Wednesday that I withdraw in his favor," Sinclair said, in a statement issued through his San Francisco campaign headquarters. "I listened courteously to the arguments of a gentleman I hold in high esteem, but I must decline Mr. Haight's suggestion that I leave the race to him. I promised Mr. Haight I would think about this suggestion, and I did so. I conferred with my campaign managers and they assure me I would win the election, defeating Mr. Merriam by a 2 to 1 vote."

White House 'Home' Again Writes H. G. Wells

By Associated Press

[illegible]

[illegible] President Harding had been like attending a politicians' reception in an official building . . .

"My call upon President Hoover was a sort of intrusion upon a sickly, over-worked and overwhelmed man, a month behind in all his engagements and hopeless of ever overtaking them…

"All this has been swept away again in 1934. I found that this magic White House had changed back again to a large, leisurely comfortable private home. All the Hoover untidiness had vanished. Everything was large, cool, orderly and unhurried.

"My impression of both President and Mrs. Roosevelt is that they are unmuted people, entirely modern in the openness of their minds and the logic of their actions. Here in the White House the unblinkered mind was in possession."

The President is, added Mr. Wells,

"A ganglion for reception, expression, transmission, combination and realization, which, I take it, is exactly what a modern government ought to be."

JEWISH FUND NOW $261,831

The Washington SIDESHOW

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service

Washington, Oct. 26—Immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus, by vote of two-thirds of House and Senate, over-riding a Presidential veto, is the latest prospective trouble casting a shadow upon the already cluttered front stoop of the White House. That there will be the essential two-thirds majority in the House in the new Congress is conceded. With respect of the Senate it is claimed.

While the administration has been centered upon the election of a New Deal Congress, rather than a Democratic Congress, thus impairing party discipline to the point where there is no party discipline, and only glitteringly grandiloquent lip service to the New Jerusalem, the individual candidates for Congress have been palavering all over the [illegible] committing themselves up to the neck to the immediate payment of the long-promised [illegible]. When the [illegible] at both ends of the [illegible] next January the bonus [illegible] will be pouring [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] faces bitter ex[illegible].

What burns 'em up out among the South Dakota farmers is that while the government is shooting steers in the "cattle pits," and sending livestock to eastern farms, fed relief is distributing 14,000,000 pounds of Argentine beef! It takes more than a corn and hog check to keep the farmers happy nowadays.

Ray Baker, who used to be Woodrow Wilson's director of the mint while young Franklin D. Roosevelt was assistant secretary of the navy, told the President at lunch the other day that he was stronger in Nevada than he was in 1932.

— Baker's theory is that the Republicans are trying to defeat Senator Key Pittman because he is chairman of foreign relations and president pro tempore of the Senate, but he assured the President Pittman would win by a larger majority than he had before. However, [illegible] is going back to Nevada to add an extra [illegible] much as a [illegible] out of the [illegible] the off [illegible].

U. S. LISTS NEW 'PUBLIC ENEMY'

By Associated Press

Washington, Oct. 26—A new list of public enemies has been compiled in Washington, but it has nothing to do with gunmen and kidapers.

It's a list of diseases against which the public health service is fighting.

Heart disease ranks as Public Enemy No. 1. It causes more deaths than any other. The rest of the list, rated according to the number of deaths caused by the afflictions, is No. 2, cancer; 3, apoplexy; 4, Bright's disease; 5, pneumonia; 6, tuberculosis; 7, infant mortality; 8, influenza; 9, sugar diabetes; 10, diarrheal diseases.

There is another list, ailments that cause the most illnesses:

No. 1, colds and bronchitis; 2, influenza and grippe; 3, digestive system diseases; 4, tonsillitis and sore throat; 5, puerperal afflictions; 6, nervous system diseases, including headaches; 7, accidents; 8, measles; 9, whooping cough; 10, rheumatism and lumbago.

Each year, increasing thousands of enthusiastic users are broadcasting the good news of Vicks Va-tro-nol. They have proved for themselves its amazing effectiveness in helping them to side-step many annoying colds.

Va-tro-nol is especially designed for the nose and throat where most colds start. It aids and stimulates the functions provided by Nature—in the nose—to prevent colds, and to throw off colds in their early stages.

Va-tro-nol is easy and convenient to use—any time or place—at home or at work. Just a few drops up each nostril—at the first sign of discomfort in the nose—irritation or dryness, sniffle or sneeze. Used in time, it helps to avoid many a cold entirely.

Where irritation has led to a clogged-up nose (a stuffy head cold or nasal catarrh) Va-tro-nol penetrates deep into the nasal passages—reduces swollen membranes—clears away clogging mucus—brings comforting relief.

Va-tro-nol's remarkable effectiveness has been proved in thousands of clinical tests supervised by practicing physicians. Equal effectiveness is shown in its everyday home use—aiding millions to greater freedom from colds.

(Note—For your protection. The remarkable success of Vicks Drops—for nose and throat—has brought scores of would-be imitators. Don't confuse Vicks treatment with mere "oil drops." The trade-mark name "Va-tro-nol" is your protection in getting the original and exclusive Vicks formula. Always ask for Vicks Va-tro-nol. It is available now in two generous sizes—30c and 50c.)

DAUGHTERS OF VENUS

By Robert Terry Shannon

CHAPTER XXXIV

Juliet's voice, to the operator, was, with an effort, cool and unshaken. Instinctively it was in her character to present, even if anonymously, a poised exterior.

"Get me Mr. Herman Gottlieb in New York at the Warwick Hotel, please."

"DON'T YIELD AN INCH"

"Hello, Mr. Gottlieb. Sorry to disturb you, but I'm a little upset. No, not [illegible]. It's Madame Hubert. She's on a rampage. She [illegible] over O'Hara [illegible]. Yes, it's [illegible] completely [illegible] going to [illegible] out of the Institute and [illegible] back here. Yes. I'll take [illegible] lawyer first thing. No, I won't worry. No, I'm not at all upset. Yes. Yes. Thanks, [illegible] sweet of you. How's the conference getting on? Oh! not yet, eh? Oh, that's [illegible]. No, don't yield an inch. No, I won't worry. Good night."

She [illegible] the receiver [illegible] Gottlieb had encouraged her to keep a cool [illegible] and [illegible] Madame Hubert [illegible].

[illegible] shadow [illegible] from her [illegible] through the night. Both [illegible] were on the [illegible] and her [illegible] and unrefreshed.

O'Hara and Van Gordon too showed signs of the strain. Van Gordon did not appear in the office but phoned her from his surgical department [illegible].

IN DRUGGED SLEEP

"I stayed with her [illegible] until six this morning. She's sleeping under a [illegible] now, but I'm going to [illegible] her this afternoon. I don't mind [illegible] you, though I may be [illegible] a confidence, that she [illegible] to [illegible] you and [illegible] out of the Institute's affairs. Better get hold of your lawyer right away."

Shortly before noon O'Hara came in, a [illegible] look about him [illegible].

[illegible] he said [illegible] Hubert gave [illegible] for a present [illegible].

[illegible] said Juliet [illegible].

[illegible] any [illegible] woman said [illegible] has always been [illegible] had been [illegible] rejuvenation business [illegible] her head completely [illegible]. I suppose but I can't [illegible]. I'm going to [illegible].

[illegible] to accept your [illegible]? It happens that [illegible].

DISCIPLINE OF LOVE

[illegible] Juliet began [illegible] how desperately [illegible] to her.

[illegible] you're saying [illegible] can't have what [illegible].

O'HARA PROPOSES

"[illegible] I'm trying to tell you," he said with an exaggerated patience. "[illegible] I've saved up enough [illegible] out of all this and [illegible]. A man's job [illegible] nothing to do with [illegible] place where they [illegible] in a while [illegible] from the horrible smell of cold creams. All this lavender has simply rotted the marrow out of my bones. It's too [illegible] for you too. We've got to wake up—both of us—and get out of this perfumed racket before it [illegible]. I'm not asking you to give up anything real. I need you and [illegible] need me. Let's go together."

[illegible] heart had begun to throb [illegible] do you mean to [illegible].

[illegible] as good as any place [illegible]. We could take a [illegible] to [illegible] up our [illegible].

[illegible] Juliet [illegible].

[illegible] come back [illegible]. O'Hara went on. After [illegible] years [illegible]. I'm fed up [illegible]. I've got to get back to the good old earth where the real people [illegible] come with me, Juliet [illegible] to do. Let's be [illegible] man and woman."

[illegible] with an intensity of earnestness [illegible] his whole [illegible].

[illegible]

O'Hara needed no such romantic advantage.

NEW YORK CALLING

New York was calling Miss Rankin . . .

He [illegible] called Gottlieb over plains and mountains and forests. It's bad news. The [illegible] off [illegible] discussion [illegible].

[illegible] them [illegible] too bad [illegible] that's the [illegible].

The [illegible] awakening from a golden dream. Nothing [illegible] remained of her career.

"I [illegible] another [illegible]. How about one of [illegible]?"

"I canvassed them all days ago," said the voice from New York. "They're not interested. No, it's a flop. It was a great idea but it didn't work. Will you call Mrs. Gottlieb, please, and tell her I'm starting home? Thank you. And if Madame Hubert takes steps to break the contract don't oppose her. I'll be glad to get out now. There's no point now in continuing on. See you when I get home. Goodbye."

"There was nothing the matter with the idea," [illegible] said in bewilderment. "Nobody—I don't care who they are—ever had a sounder business idea. Gottlieb himself thought it was sensational. I'll never understand why it didn't go."

It looked as though tears were about to flood into her eyes.

"Don't take it to heart," he said.

"Foods you fry with Crisco won't sour on your stomach," advises Mrs. Parascouly

Because CRISCO is the quick-digesting fat

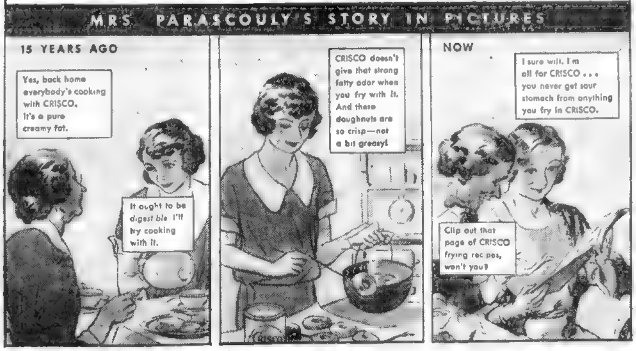
Mrs. John Parascouly learned about Crisco from her mother-in-law about 15 years ago. "She told me then that Crisco wasn't greasy, and better for the digestion," says Mrs. Parascouly, "and that appealed to me. Now I use it for cakes, pies and especially for frying, and I never have greasy food that disagrees and causes sour stomach. With a growing family to keep healthy, I certainly think that it pays to use Crisco, the pure, quick-digesting fat."



MRS PARASCOULY'S STORY IN PICTURES
15 YEARS AGO
Yes, back home everybody's cooking with CRISCO. It's a pure creamy fat.
It ought to be digestible. I'll try cooking with it.
CRISCO doesn't give that strong fatty odor when you fry with it. And these doughnuts are so crisp—not a bit greasy!
NOW
I sure will. I'm all for CRISCO . . . you never get sour stomach from anything you fry in CRISCO.

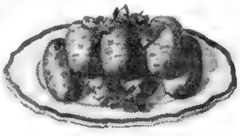
PEACHIES

an easy dessert when fried in digestible Crisco!

1 cup flour	1 egg
2 tablespoons sugar	1 tablespoon melted Crisco
1 teaspoon baking powder	12 canned peach halves
¼ teaspoon salt	1 teaspoon lemon juice
⅓ cup milk	Crisco for deep frying

Sift dry ingredients. Stir in egg and melted Crisco, beaten together with milk. Drain peaches, sprinkle with lemon juice. Dip into batter and drop into hot Crisco heated to 365°-375° F. or hot enough to brown inch cube of bread in 60 seconds. (Crisco is the pure creamy fat that makes fried food crispy and digestible.) Fry peaches until brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve hot, sprinkled with powdered sugar, or plain with strained honey. Strain Crisco to clear it—save it in its special can for frying. It will keep digestible for many fryings.



CURRY CROQUETTES

crisp and digestible, when fried in Crisco!

4 tablespoons Crisco	½ teaspoon paprika
4 tablespoons flour
1 cup hot milk	COATING:
2 cups cooked chicken or veal, chopped	1 egg slightly beaten with
1 cup fresh coconut, grated or canned grated coconut	2 tablespoons water
½ teaspoon curry	⅓ cup fine dry bread crumbs
½ teaspoon salt	Crisco for deep frying

Melt Crisco (the fresh digestible fat) stir in flour; slowly add milk. Cook slowly and stir until sauce thickens. Remove from heat, add meat, coconut and seasonings. Pour into shallow Criscoed pan. Chill thoroughly. Then form into croquettes. Roll in crumbs, then egg mixture, then in crumbs. Fill ordinary flat-bottomed saucepan ⅓ full of melted Crisco (the quick-digesting fat). Heat slowly until Crisco browns inch cube of bread in 60 seconds (375°-385° F.). Fry croquettes golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve plain or with thin white sauce. Strain Crisco—save it to fry with again and again—Crisco keeps digestible.

This Is Life

ROBERT E. ROGERS

Robert E. Rogers

I wonder how valid future generations will consider the [illegible] picture which [illegible] Episcopal bishops [illegible] of America [illegible] of their recent triennial convention. It expressed more [illegible] and almost despairingly the churchmen's concern over the moral deterioration of our day.

It spoke of the menace of Reno, of a wicked and adulterous generation of [illegible] and licentious drama and literature and of [illegible] inadequate sense of moral obligation, all of which caused the present evil conditions [illegible] the New Deal itself.

The implication is that if everybody cooperated in the New Deal [illegible] would be well.

[illegible] jeremiads are not new in [illegible]. The pages of the prophets of the Old Testament are full of [illegible] with a frequency [illegible] would [illegible] Read Amos and Hosea warning to the rich and the [illegible] of their day, some [illegible] before the fall of Babylon [illegible] Above [illegible] description of Jerusalem [illegible] of [illegible] women, if you would see how [illegible].

After the sack of Rome in 410 Augustine, bishop of Hippo, wrote [illegible] with a picture of [illegible] oppression and immorality [illegible] curious as to [illegible] and how [illegible] the art of a great theater.

Nearly a thousand years later Savonarola so played upon the emotions of the half-pagan Florentines that he forced a kind of reform [illegible] upon them, so short lived that [illegible] many years later the public [illegible] that had heard his preaching witnessed his burning.

And so it goes. The pendulum swings from license to reform like well-known waves of the sea, but the sea remains [illegible] as it was. The tendency to ascribe the difficulties of civilization solely to moral backsliding is hard to overcome. Historic Christianity ascribes the downfall of Rome almost entirely to the era of luxury and lust of the later Romans.

Yet sober historians will tell you that the decline of agriculture played its part, the passing of the free farmer-owner and the coming of the mortgaged tenant who later becomes the serf; the excess of imports over exports; the growth of [illegible] supported by the state; the drain of silver from Rome to Byzantium and with it the transfer of imperial power; the growing strength of the army as emperor-makers; the infiltration of barbarians and their new culture; and even the rapid increase of malaria from the undrained Italian marshes.

All these, we are told, were quite as much the causes of the Roman decline as was the weakening of [illegible] character through wealth and unbelief.

Apparently the Bishops take the opposite view, that our troubles with politics and finance, crime, unemployment, [illegible] in morals and the like, are the result solely of [illegible] and moral backslidings. Well, maybe so. It is interesting to remember that such thunderings were not often heard during the great boom decade.

Somehow morals did not seem to matter quite so much then as they seem to today. Is it because we have failed to solve the causes of the depression and to find reasonable and probable cures for it that we suddenly remind ourselves that the whole thing is a philosophical question after all and not merely economic or political?

Is it merely a case of "when the Devil was sick, the Devil a monk would be"?

"With its corollary when the Devil was well, the Devil a monk was he!"

Between these two schools of thought there can be no agreement. One group says that purely economic and materialistic difficulties are the cause and a decay in morals and ethics the result. The other insists that economic and political difficulties are merely so many symptoms and results of spiritual backsliding and sinfulness.

The wise man will say that in these we see only compensation, as Emerson phrased it, the action and reaction by which life proceeds. Certainly puritanism is no cure-all, anymore than the New Deal, to which the Bishops give lip service, is a cure-all.

One remembers with satisfaction that eras of extreme holiness and eras of extreme crime and moral laxness are alike, exceptions in the course of history, periods which destroy themselves by their own extremeness.

But the pendulum of history, unlike the physical pendulum, does not swing from extreme to extreme. The golden mean is more common, more normal, more frequent, and longer in duration, than the extremes.

One may say to the Bishops: "Be of good cheer. This also shall pass away." Normal humanity is sure to reassert itself presently.

Mrs. Robinson Will 'Lose' Appendix Before New Trip

TOO TIRED, ANN RESTS

ANN HARDING

VACATION ORDERED FOR ANN HARDING

(Copyright, 1934, By International News Service)

Hollywood, Oct. 26—Doctors will banish Ann Harding from Hollywood and motion picture work for a complete rest.

Returning to the R-K-O studio after a seven days illness, the blonde star yesterday announced she is yielding to the advice of physicians and will sail for Tahiti as soon as her current film, "Enchanted April," is completed. She will be gone for at least three months.

The strain of appearing in four pictures in a row has been too much for her, Ann declared. She is suffering from bronchitis and exhaustion and her medical adviser, Dr. William Branch, has ordered a six months vacation. Ann will try to compromise on three.

Present plans call for Ann to make the trip with only her little daughter, Jane, and a nurse for the child as companions.

SIMPLE RITES

Penniless Ex-Envoy Gets His Wish

Worcester, Oct. 26—From the court of the Emperor Franz Josef of Austria to a slab in a city morgue, that is believed to be the story of Bernard E. Goepfert, 72, who died last Wednesday here.

Proud to have been an envoy from the court of Franz Josef, known to have spoken fluently at least three languages, respected by the influential citizens of his community and a relic of the heel-clicking days of military bows, Goepfert died penniless.

In the old days, he had said that when he died he wanted to be buried "simply and without ceremony."

The welfare department does it that way.

DEATH RACE

FOR HUSBAND RECALLED

Mrs William A. Robinson is going to have a perfectly healthy appendix removed.

The idea may seem a bit unorthodox to most persons who believe in having surgical attention when there is something the matter with them, and not until. But a little memory work furnishes the answer.

Her husband, William A. Robinson, the wealthy Cambridge explorer, is alive today by what surgical authorities call a miracle aided and abetted by an efficient navy.

Robinson Saved

Robinson, his wife who was Florence Crane, society favorite, daughter of Mrs. Richard T. Crane of Chicago, and Dana West of Winchester, his young cousin, were cruising in the South Seas in their ketch Svaap last spring when Robinson suddenly developed an attack of appendicitis. The nearest point of surgical aid was 1100 miles away.

And the appendix burst.

The Navy was informed of the grave danger of the skipper of the little party by a radio call sent from a nearby tuna-fisherman's boat and rushed to the scene by plane and by warship.

And by some miraculous quirk of fate it arrived in time. Robinson eventually recovered, fully.

No Chances

Now another sailing trip is planned and again Mrs Robinson is going along. But she's not going to take an appendix with her. The cruise will be in the waters bordering Tahiti where there is no likelihood of a first-class hospital [illegible] up for ruptured appendix.

So Mrs. Robinson is having her healthy appendix out.

When her explorer-husband's appendix started acting up on him on a lonely South Sea island, Mrs. William A. Robinson, heiress and former society darling, played nurse to him and kept him from death until the U. S. Navy could bring surgical aid. Now, planning to go exploring again, the young wife is going to have her appendix, healthy though it is, removed in a nice, comfy modern hospital before she starts. She wore this nurse's uniform when she was watching over her husband's convalescence.

Only for John Riley and his favorite plurality the sophomore class at St. John's High School in North Cambridge would have had an all-Murphy slate of class officers today.

BEER ALSO MAKES FOGS

Defendant Forgets Fire Alarms

Much as it chagrins him to reveal it, Frank Cook is slipping. Where once he could drink a whole keg of beer in an evening's sitting, now his capacity is limited to 50 or 60 beers—he isn't sure.

Cook, who is 45 and lives in Danvers, made this declaration in Salem district court, where he pleaded guilty to sounding a false alarm of fire in Danvers.

On the night he pulled the alarm, October 14, Cook had taken his curtailed quota—50 or 60 beers—he said, and he was a bit foggy about the whole business.

Judge George B. Sears gave him a suspended sentence of three months in the House of Correction.

Happy Days for Curley in Song

'WE WANT YOU' IS THEME OF TUNE FOR DRIVE

Up to today former Mayor Curley had everything but a song in his campaign for governor and today he had the song.

It was written by Lois Weir, well-known Boston organist, to the tune of "Happy Days Are Here Again," the Roosevelt campaign number, and here are the Curley words:

He was always staunch and true,
He always fought to see us through.
So let's organize a cheering crew,
With the slogan, "We Want You."
Happy days will be soon be here
Goodbye depression, no more fear,
And we'll boost Jim Curley, and we'll cheer

With the slogan, "We Want You,"
We know you'll lead the field
With Roosevelt's great new deal.
So Jim Curley were your friend,
We'll stick right with you to the end
To the State House you're the man we'll send.
That's our slogan, "We Want You."

And the 25-year-old chauffeur might have had the entire estate if he had consented to Mrs. Bliss adopting him, he said. He didn't because he has a family of his own down in Clearwater, Florida.

Mrs. Bliss died last Saturday. She made bequests amounting to $50,000 and left the residue of the Bliss estate to Malden Hospital to erect a building as a memorial to her husband.

The little Boston terrier who was Mrs. Bliss' companion in her declining years is to be given to Mrs. Blesson S. Curtice, a next door neighbor on Fellsway East, Malden. Mrs. Curtice was given a $5,000 legacy.

The dog "Buddy" was not mentioned in the will, Hansen explained, but just before she died, Mrs. Bliss wrote a note asking Mrs. Curtice to take care of him.

SEES JAIL, GUN DOOM FOR KIDNAPER

The efforts of the Department of Justice in [illegible] crime on the run throughout the country have won the admiration and heartfelt gratitude of the movie colony, according to Ben Lyon, who is better known to three-year-old Barbara Lyon than he [illegible].

Said Movie Star Lyon:

"In the matter of guaranteeing perfect safety to their citizens, the British could teach this country plenty. When we were in England a summer ago, fresh from Hollywood and the constant menace of kidnaping, we realized afresh how truly an Englishman's home is his castle.

"Their police are unarmed and I even became acquainted with a London 'bobby' who had never been required to use his stick in 22 years."

DAY BY DAY

O. O. McIntyre

New York, Oct. 26—Thoughts [illegible] Many of the social [illegible] a shanty [illegible].

Add [illegible] Jae W. [illegible] [illegible] Donald [illegible] John James Barrymore and Russell [illegible] Eddie Peabody without his wife. Haven't seen a finger ring around a four-in-hand since Rags Barton's day. That dash of white in Edna Ferber's hair.

What became of Sailing Baruch? And his middle hair part to his collar. Never knew a taxi driver who didn't [illegible] Detroit. Certainly [illegible] the ox-blood shirts with [illegible] a play. The 400 actress [illegible] Bourne. The Social Register turns out for her. Vivian Fay [illegible] dancing toast. Broadway [illegible] the yokel a [illegible]. Leo Newman is lost without his old running mate, C. B. Dillingham. Conversation piece: "And I gave up my golf. So what?" How does Sid Solomon get that balsam stick to his hair? George Matthew Adams, first of the newspaper syndicators. And still going. Betz Beaton walks like Dolores. The Will Rogerses' Mary suggests bluebells, sunbonnets and the starry lane. Elizabeth Arden is always flitting about like a butterfly. Bernarr Macfadden, nearing 60, stands on his head every morning before breakfast. Read here for all the standing-on-head news!

New York artists were several weeks realizing the Robert J. Wildhack whose snore lecture was a high light of the Winter Garden show was the Bob Wildhack of Washington Square and Gramercy 20 years ago. His comeback is an epic of fortitude and courage. As a promising magazine artist, he suddenly cracked up physically and was shipped to California. There he and his wife fought a game but constantly losing battle financially, although his health improved. He came to New York several months ago looking for a break. Someone suggested to Lee Shubert a made-up act Wildhack used to perform for friends. He was spotted in the revue that opened in Boston. Next night he got his notice. A few days later, as he was convulsing audiences, they asked him to tear up his notice. His struggles are over. Few know his health permits him only a few hours on his feet daily. Most of the time he must lie down. But for 15 minutes of his standing up period he can make people laugh as they have seldom laughed before.

Among reputedly richest stage actors are David Warfield, George M. Cohan, Otis Skinner and Joe Weber. Maud Adams, in the millionaire division, is the wealthiest actress with the far younger Katharine Cornell a runner-up. Among young actors topping the wealthy list are Al Jolson, Chic Sale, Eddie Cantor and William Gaxton.

In the old trouping days, the actor rarely banked in the traditional manner. Usually savings to tide him over his summer pasturing, were sent to some cafe or hotel keeper. Bartholdi's Inn and Joel's cafe were two better known caches for such deposits. Also Considine's and Churchill's. Actresses thought the best security against old age was jewels. They had added value in the prestige of personal adornment. Bernhardt spent 80 per cent of her savings on such baubles. Lillian Russell made no other kind of investment.

There is incidentally, constant overstressing the plight of stage players as result of the collapse of the theater. No other profession in the corona of eclipse has been so handsomely treated by Fate as the legitimate actor. Nearly all the high salaried stars featured and character players of Hollywood were once haphazard troupers. They are getting higher pay and steady work for 40 weeks. Big movie cathedrals in large cities with stage shows take care of a larger number than is imagined. Indeed there are more firmaments for the stellar display than ever before. The real economic tragedy in the theater has been among pit musicians, box office men, stage hands, scene shifters, electricians and the like.

Given in Marriage

By ADELE GARRISON

Lillian to stand guard over Avis as Madge seeks to smooth the quarrel between Mary and Noel.

CHAPTER 176

I FLAYED myself that the genuine pity I felt for Avis Allen should be tinged with irritation at her outburst of sobbing, but I had no time to discipline my reactions, so I simply tightened around her the arm upon which she had leaned so heavily in ascending the stairs, and half led, half carried her along the corridor to my room. There I deposited her upon the bed where she had lain awake watching me and from which she had stolen away to interrupt my interview with Noel.

"I'll get Mrs. Bickett," I said, patting her shoulder in what I felt was an awkward and futile attempt at consolation.

She started up and clutched at my hand tightly.

"You're not going to lock me in, as Noel said?" she pleaded, as she had done when we left the study, where Noel had issued that ultimatum.

AVIS PROMISES

"Not if you give me your solemn promise to remain right here until I return," I told her, knowing well that I would not be out of sight of my door during the time I should be absent from her.

"I'll promise anything," she gasped, "if you only won't lock me in." I realized that she was in the grip of claustrophobia, something which I might have expected from a person so neurotic as she is.

"I'll leave the door wide open," I told her, "and you will be able to make me hear you at any second. I'm not going to be gone a minute."

"All right," she gasped, and changed her dry sobs to copious weeping. I made no further attempt to console her, but hurried across the hall to the nursery. I tapped lightly, and Katherine came promptly to the door.

"Is anything wrong?" she asked a bit tensely. "I heard Mary go out a little while ago."

"Nothing is seriously wrong with anybody physically," I told her with a wry smile, "but the mental and spiritual atmosphere is charged a bit heavily. I wish that you would come over and give Avis a sedative. She needs some rest badly."

"And so do you, I warrant," she retorted shrewdly. "I'll be right over. Baby Faith is sound asleep, and I'm sure she won't waken for hours. But the suite here must not be left alone long."

"Of course not," I agreed. "I'm going to Lillian's room now. She'll come and mount guard wherever you say in the nursery or in my room over Avis. I have to go back to my study where Noel and Mary are waiting for me, and there must be somebody on guard over Avis. She must not come out of that room again tonight."

"Sounds as if there'd been a lively party at the zoo," Katherine commented shrewdly. "But I'll be right over. Run along and serve your papers on Lillian. I'm already on the job."

"I know that," I assured her earnestly, and went on down the hall to Lillian's room, to find her awake and reading.

"Guess the general excitement is getting me, too," she said with a gamin grin, as I came in. "I couldn't sleep, no matter what I tried."

"I'm glad you couldn't," I said, "for I need you," and I explained my errand, as I had done to Katherine.

"So the cobra wriggled out of the basket when your back was turned," she said, with quick understanding of what I had omitted in my story. "But don't you worry any more. I won't have to turn my back until morning, and I'll be on the job from now on." Then I hurried back to my room, where I found Katherine bathing Avis' face and hands with cool water.

"Help me get her undressed," she said as I entered. Together we undressed the girl and put her again into her night clothing. Katherine gave her a sedative, then looked at me inquiringly.

"Now what?" she asked. "She doesn't need professional services any longer; but I can stay here with her if you want to go."

But Avis put out a frantic, clutching hand.

"Don't go, Mrs. Graham," she gasped. "I must ask you something."

Stork-Shower Cards

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

My friends have just given me a stork shower. Kindly let me know if I am to send notes of thanks, also what to say in such notes. Some friends could not be present but sent gifts. K.

Yes, I'd like to have you send a note of thanks to each kind giver at the shower—it will show your graciousness and appreciation. And the notes might be worded something like this:

Dear Helena

How kind you were to bring me such a beautiful gift to the shower that Grace gave for me yesterday. Thank you, most heartily, for your goodness and generosity. I am sure that my baby is to wear that lovely coat with great happiness and pride. I can hardly wait to see (him) (her) cuddled deep in its beauty and warmth. Bless you for it, dear friend.

Do come to see me soon, won't you? Affectionately,

PACK SOME ICE INTO A NEW ROLLER AND SLITHER THE YEARS AWAY

Announcing Chic, Youth, and Subtle Lines for Larger Figures

HERE'S AN EXCITING fashion story for the woman who believes herself condemned to wear stilted surplice styles, meaningless jabots, and uninteresting V-neck lines. For her, with careful consideration of lines that are not as slim as they were, brilliant new fashions are designed. Charming, young details, delightful fabrics and irresistible gadgets are adapted for her immediately that they appear in high-fashion marts. And classed though they are as "better dresses" they're far from expensive . . . a lovely example, the velvet frock shown, with shining white ottoman plastron collar metal-threaded and touched with rhinestone buttons. For information, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, Liberty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Beauty Gadget Reduces and Refreshes

By the Beauty Editor

IF YOU HAVE BEEN two-timing your face all summer and are now in a state of dither because you want to be beautiful again, you couldn't do better than string along with a new beauty gadget that magically rolls away wrinkles and double chins.

It's all very well putting your best chin forward, but when your neckline has got to the point where it's a matter of higher mathematics, it's one-hundred-to-one that the absent treatment won't help—not when chins, and wrinkles and crow's feet are multiplying as fast as rabbits in a magician's hat.

Ask any beauty expert from Paris to Singapore what the answer is to complexions remaining as freshly alluring and glamorous at 40 as at 17 and he will tell you that it's a perfect circulation. It is the only honest answer. No skin was ever known to grow lovelier with the years, when the circulation was lazy or sluggish.

SMOOTHS OUT WRINKLES

If you've reached the point where you feel that something has got to be done to your face, I know of just the gadget for you. It's an attractive cylindrical roller which mechanically resembles the tennis court roller—in shiny miniature of course. The tank is filled with chopped ice (if you have an electric refrigerator you can freeze it as you would an ice cube), and the face is rolled with the massager. It smooths out wrinkles, reduces double chins, relieves headaches and is grand for a last-minute pick-me-up before an important date.

If you have found that icing the face after a massage is often too shockingly cold, and yet you crave its invigorating effect, this gadget is by all means your dish. As for the army of women who have given up the stimulating practice of rubbing ice on the face because melting tricklets and the slippery elusiveness of the ice has driven them frantic, all I can say is that this roller is not a bit messy or drippy to use.

VERY INEXPENSIVE

The combination of the ice and the rolling provides the stimulation which is the fundamental principle of glowing complexions. If you expect thrilling things from this new gadget you won't be disappointed. Neither will your budget, for remarkable as it seems you'll get change from a 50-cent piece.

To learn where this ice-roller may be bought in Boston, phone the Beauty Editor, Liberty 4000. If you prefer writing for this information send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Beauty Department, Boston Evening American, Boston, along with your inquiry.

Exhilarating Facial Pick-Up

POSED BY MADGE EVANS

Corrective Skin Treatment

Question: My face is covered with unsightly whiteheads. Please tell me the cause and how I may best cure these blemishes.

K. E., Wakefield.

Answer: Whiteheads are caused by clogged pores. To correct this condition you should wash your face frequently with warm water and a mild neutral soap or washing preparation, such as many of the cosmetic houses make.

After washing, dry the face with a towel. Then apply an astringent to close the pores after they are clean and prevent dirt from entering them. If you keep up this treatment, I am sure you will find the whiteheads disappearing rapidly.

Ammonia Bleach

Question: Can you tell me the proper proportion of ammonia to be used in making a bleach for superfluous hair? Will it permanently banish the growth? What type of ammonia is to be used? M. L.

South Boston.

Answer: Peroxide and ammonia make a splendid bleach. However, you must never apply it too close to the eyes, and you should stuff your nostrils with cotton so that the fumes will not be inhaled.

The proportions are 6 drops of household ammonia to three tablespoonfuls of peroxide. If the hair is very dark, add a little more peroxide. Allow it to dry on the facial hair and then pat in a drop or two of pure olive oil.

This bleach will tend to discourage the growth of the hair on the face, but I do not believe any superfluous hair can be permanently banished by any method other than electrolysis.

Eruption Under Skin

Question: When I run my hand across my face it appears as though there are bumps beneath the surface of the skin. I cannot understand the cause as I take excellent care of my face, washing it every night with a complexion soap and warm water. Can you help me?

H. L., Dedham.

Answer: From the description you give me, I would not say that you have whiteheads. The condition sounds more like a slight eruption beneath the skin. This can come from an upset stomach, improper diet or sluggish elimination. What you are doing now is a very wise way to care for your skin. Watch your diet and general health. If the condition does not clear up when you are in perfect physical condition otherwise, I would advise you to consult your family physician.

Indoor Flowers New Theme in Decoration

FLOWER lovers who have been enjoying their beautiful gardens throughout the summer will soon be turning to indoor plants and blooms. The new theme in decoration calls for flowers and lots of them to add a note of [illegible] to the living room or, for that matter, to any other room in the apartment or the house.

This gives rise to several questions, chief among which is, "What can I raise that is beautiful and is at the same time simple to care for and hardy in growth?"

Paper white Narcissi answer this question perfectly. Narcissi are among the most beautiful of all flowers and their culture is so easy that a child can grow them. All that is necessary is to place them in a bowl containing pebbles and water and let them stand. By planting in different lots from October to March continuous blooms may be had from Thanksgiving till Easter. The result is a mass of delicate, lacy, white blooms with a lovely light fragrance which will pervade the entire home.

Unconventional Low Card Lead From K-J-10 Notrump Sets Bid

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Though Bridge players have had it drummed into them to avoid leading from tenace positions, it is hardly necessary to point out that there can be no objection to such a lead if it offers the best chance of defeating an opposing contract. On the hand below the West player brilliantly defeated a three-notrump contract by not only leading away from a tenace position but by [illegible] the low card from a K-J-10-x combination instead of the conventional Jack.

South Dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ J 9 8 ♡ K J 8 ◇ 9 8 7 3 ♣ A 10 7
♠ A Q ♡ 10 9 6 5 2 ◇ K J 10 6 ♣ 8 2	North West East South	♠ 7 6 4 3 ♡ 7 4 3 ◇ Q 5 ♣ 9 6 4 3
	♠ K 9 5 2 ♡ A Q ◇ A 4 2 ♣ K Q J 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 N T (1)	Pass	2 N T	Pass
3 N T	Pass	Pass	Pass

(1) An alternative bid on this hand would be one club. However, South has over four honor-tricks and a balanced hand and believes that a better picture of his hand can be painted by an opening no-trump call.

West, when faced with the problem of the opening lead, quite naturally chose the seemingly safer opening from the five-card heart suit rather than a gambling lead from the four-card diamond suit. South won the opening heart lead in his own hand and had no choice but to immediately try to set up a spade trick. He led the club Jack and overtook with the Ace in dummy, and now led the spade Jack, playing small from his own hand. West won the trick with the Queen and realized that he must make an immediate decision. Despite the fact that the declarer had won the first heart trick with the Ace and despite the fact that South had played his club suit in the most deceptive way possible to conceal its absolute solidity, West realized from the bidding that South almost certainly had three sure heart tricks and four sure club tricks. These seven tricks with the almost certain spade tricks that the declarer was in the act of setting up, would enable the latter to fulfill his contract.

Thus the only hope for East and West was to take three or four diamond tricks. Obviously if West led diamonds and the declarer had the Ace and Queen both, a trick would be sacrificed, but if this were the case the contract could not possibly be defeated anyway. West therefore realized that an immediate diamond shift was necessary. He chose a low one rather than the Jack, realizing that to defeat the contract he had to find an honor in his partner's hand anyway and for West to lead an honor himself might very easily [illegible] the suit and made dummy's nine-eight a second stopper. On West's low diamond lead East went up with the Queen. Whether South held up or not was immaterial. Actually South did hold up but his Ace was eventually forced out, and when West got in with the spade Ace, he was able to cash another diamond trick and defeat the contract.

It is easily seen that had West led the diamond Jack, South would have made the hand. East could not have overtaken without giving declarer a second stopper and South would hold up on the second round as well as the first, thus effectually blocking the suit.

One more interesting point can be noted in the play of this hand. Had West, by some peculiar bit of reasoning, chosen to open the low diamond instead of the fourth best heart, South on a double dummy line of play could have fulfilled his contract. He could have won the diamond Ace and run four club tricks and three heart tricks. West would then have been effectually squeezed and end-played and finally thrown in with his good diamonds for a lead up to the declarer's spade King.

Charm, Clothes Help Homely Girls

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

ME—How does it feel to be really homely?

HOMELY GIRL—(with a withering glance at my face) . . . Are you asking me?

ME—(not noticing the dig) Sure, I am sorry for you. I want to help you, by telling you what is wrong with you.

H. G.—My mirror does that for me every day.

ME—Get wise to yourself. It is not your face that is your worst enemy, it is you. Just for fun—or pain—tell me, when was your last date with a man?

H. G.—(thinking hard). About five weeks ago.

ME—How old are you?

H. G.—Twenty-one—but what has that got to do with——

ME—(interrupting) Everything.

H. G.—(bitterly) I didn't pick him—he picked me. Have you never heard the story about beggars not being choosers?

ME—Stop being sorry for yourself and get that poverty line out of your head sister. No healthy, normally shaped female of twenty-one need call herself a love beggar. How would you like to be rushed by lots of handsome young men?

H. G.—(skeptically) Now you tell me one.

ME—All right. I will. You think your face is your worst enemy, don't you? Well, you are wrong—seventy-five per cent wrong. Blame your mind, blame its attitude toward your homeliness. You have allowed it to lick you without even raising a powder puff in self defense. What do you do with yourself in your spare time?

H. G.—Three evenings a week I attend lectures. Once a week I go to the theater with a girl friend and the other two evenings I stay home and read.

Me—Phew, no wonder you look a little goofy. Why don't you spend some time trying to improve your complexion instead of your intellect?

H. G.—What good would that do me?

Me—(now getting exasperated) Will you shut up and let me finish. Here is a mirror—look at your face. Your eyes are too close together, your hair is dull and looks as though several birds are using it for nesting; your complexion is sallow.

H. G.—(angrily) What are you trying to do—take me for a ride?

Me — (disregarding her outburst) Now smile. I didn't say sneer—smile—come on, let's have it—a little bit wider. That's fine. Now hold it for a minute. Has anyone ever told you you have a fascinating smile and gorgeous teeth? No? That's because you make your defects so glaringly obvious.

Take your face to a facial specialist. Let a hairdresser renew the life in your hair. Get yourself some new clothes.

Yawkey Overpowers Griffith With Currency and Buys in Joe Cronin

George and Browning in Wrestling Revival at Boston Garden

By AUSTEN LAKE

Austen Lake

IN HIS ABRUPT FASHION, Tom Shawkey today dipped into his cash barrel up to the elbows and fished up a record armload of dollars with which to ransom Joe Cronin and install him as manager of his lovely Fenway Acres. It is said to have cost Yawkey $150,000 in solid money, plus the value of Lyn Lary, which is another $25,000, to import Cronin, wiping out most of the Red Sox profits for last season.

At least Eddie Collins in a breathless state said that the price exceeded anything in his memory, and previous tops was the $125,000 which Colonel Ruppert of the Yankees paid to the late Harry Frazee for Babe Ruth, when Harry was pawnbroking his Red Sox property in 1920.

THIS, OF COURSE, MAKES BUCKY Harris' face quite red because Bucky had every expectation of being re-elected to office for another term. And Collins today agreed that Bucky had been No. 1 in line to succeed himself, until "a man of Cronin's proportions came in sight."

It will no doubt, be a killing blow to Harris who conceded that he had the best spot in baseball. And we hear that it also well nigh killed Clark Griffith, the Washington owner, to part with Joe which he said was like selling his own flesh and blood. Because Cronin lately married Clark's neice.

But Clark, who loves nothing better than to make a shilling, unless it is to make more shillings, unselfishly considered his nephew-in-law's future first, and his own interests second, and pocketed the $150,000 plus the Lary collateral, and snuffled up his tears.

YAWKEY IS SUDDEN ABOUT these thigs, and as spendthrift a buyer as Frazee used to be a lavish seller on the same Fenway site. Collins was saying that the roots of the Cronin deal were first planted during the World Series in Detroit, when Yawkey asked, "Who, of all players in the league, do you most want?" And, when Collins said, hopelessly, 'Joe Cronin." Yawkeq merely patted him fondly on the knee and said, "Well, I will make Griffith's eyes bulge, if nothing more."

Now this will give the Washington news writers apoplexy, because the authors of the Nation's Capital are not merely journalists but apologists for their managers and rooters for the home town team as well and Cronin was considered to have married his job for life. And I suspect that the Senator scriveners will be making up a new sequence of cuss paragraphs when they find out about this pair [illegible] swept away with the tide of their emotion.

But yet, maybe not, because the natives booed young Joe liberally during the past season, when his pennant dream collapsed around his ears by an unheard-of series of injuries. And I have heard that Griffith was somewhat perplexed and, in spite of his ters, may be secretly pleased by the sudden turn.

WELL, it gives the Red Sox the best shortstop in the league, being already possessed of the best third baseman and the best catcher. And would be surprised if there were not a few more "bests" to add to this collection before the end of the winter, because the fans of Boston are becoming used to Yawkey surprises and will be disappointed if they are not surprised further.

THE MOST FASCINATING TRAIT of this goofy obsession called wrestling, which consumes so many man-hours and emotional power is that the same scenes and athletes, like Ed George and Jim Browning's setpiece at the Garden tonight, may be repeated every few weeks without loss of customer appeal.

Well, the finest art in wrestling is not the casual but the studied, and it is reasonable to believe that the more George and Browning twizzle each other about, the better they will twizzle.

The greatest artists are those who, while honestly adhering to the libretto, polish their performance into convincing show of savagery and bitterness.

I used to thrill to Strangler Lewis' revivals with the elder Zbyszko, which was in the mauve and lavender decade of wrestling, and I can vouch that the rendition improved as the men mastered their parts.

Lewis in his prime, was like a stock company actor, always one week ahead of his lessons. He never had to hesitate to consider what hold came next, but was free to let himself soar into beautiful flights of athletic theatrics.

I FIND IT A MISTAKEN POLICY to meet the people I am called to write essays about because there is always the risk that you may like them.

It becomes increasingly difficult to slur the wrestlers becomingly because they, like George and Browning, are quiet, forgiving folk, who worry about money troubles and are given to placid dinner table chat.

If I were given my druthers, I would take the wrestlers and give you the other pro athletes, which embrace some very trying types like Bill Terry, Goose Goslin and Frankie Frisch.

I have observed that wrestling, as a profession, sifts the viciousness out of a man's system and leaves him docile, so that wrestlers [illegible] men are a tractable set, who come home nights and save their money.

You have never heard of a wrestler needing a benefit, eh? And I cannot recall, off hand, hearing any unsavory marital scandals about them.

Even Gus Sonnenberg, who was a frantic type in his youth and given to radiator pulling, remained faithful to his ideal after his wife deserted to Hollywood and became Judith Allen.

Well, you will see the most frightful characters of the mat, like Charley Strack, Johnny Spellman and Man Mountain Dean, who privately live very chummy, domestic lives. And I am not kidding you a bit.

the Tigers and Cardinals yapping and growling at each other.

"There's Joe Cronin," answered Collins, "but I don't think you can pry him loose from Washington."

"Leave it to me," said Yawkey. "I'll make him an offer that will jar him."

DEAL MADE YESTERDAY

He did exactly that. The deal was consummated yesterday afternoon in Yawkey's brokerage office in New York. [illegible] in Boston the early part of December.

Harris, who had been signed to a one-year contract only last spring had been laying plans for improving the Red Sox come next season, and the news must have come as a most unpleasant shock.

JOE GREAT SHORTSTOP

Boston fans, however, will read [illegible] for Cronin, one of the great shortstops of the [illegible] will not only manage, but will also play shortstop.

[illegible] always been a howling [illegible] in this manager town. An [illegible] colorful, cocky ball [illegible] a marvelous fielder and better than .300 hitter, he will give the Red Sox added power, both defensively and offensively.

Bucky Harris was the original "boy manager." Joe Cronin was "boy manager number two." Both won their sobriquets managing the Washington Senators. In 1924, when he was only 27 years old, Harris, a product of the coal mines of Pennsylvania, was appointed manager of the Senators by Clarke Griffith and he promptly won the American League pennant.

Then in one of the most dramatic World Series in the entire history of baseball, his outfit won the championship of the world from the New York Giants by taking [illegible] the seventh and deciding game, old Walter Johnson—the beloved "Big Barney"—[illegible] his awkward gait to the [illegible] and with all the speed he ever had, pitched the Senators to the title.

WON TITLE IN 1925

In 1925, too, Harris won the American League championship once more, but in the World Series, the Pittsburgh Pirates gave his young men a swift kick in the pants. Then the team fell suddenly into small, disorganized parts, and when the season of 1927 was through, so was Harris.

He [illegible] Moriarty as [illegible] of the Detroit Tigers [illegible] was ever a stick-out [illegible] became manager of the Red Sox [illegible] for the popular Marty McManus had been given his release.

For one reason or another the Red Sox failed to better than [illegible] It was not the fault of Harris, in the opinion of wise old baseball men.

Lefty Grove was impotent, Rube Walberg did not deliver the mail, George Pipgras had a cracked elbow, and went home for the season. Calamity piled on calamity.

The new deal was made with startling suddenness. George Marshall, publisher of the Washington Herald and a close intimate friend of Harris, declared over the 'phone at 10.50 this morning that Harris had not been notified of his discharge until 10.30.

After Walter Johnson had failed dismally, as a successor to Harris, young Joe Cronin was named manager in 1932, to the utter dismay of the veteran Joe Judge, who had been promised the job.

Cronin duplicated the feat of Harris. At the age of 26, in his first year as manager, he hustled the Senators to the American League championship on his sheer aggressiveness, but lost to the New York Giants in the World Series. That was 1933.

Last season the Senators took a good old floperoo, but when Joe married Clarke Griffith's niece, it was agreed by all hands and the cook that Master Cronin had won himself a permanent home with the Senators.

Not so, my fans, not so. Out of a clear blue October sky came the news that Griffith had sold him to the Red Sox for a staggering sum, with Lyn Lary tossed in for good measure.

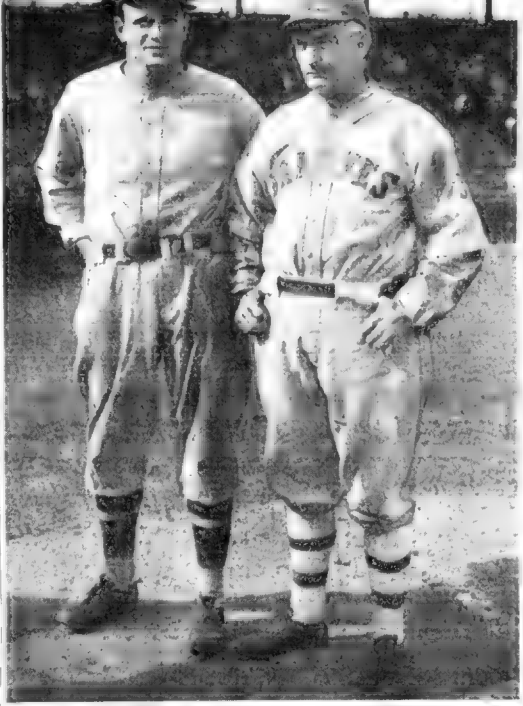
SOX NEED SHORT STOP

The Red Sox have been having shortstop trouble for many years, man and boy, and Cronin will undoubtedly fill that yawning gap between second and third.

Though Harris is strictly out on the end of a limb, the baseball fanatics will probably be interested in a thumbnail biography of Cronin. Here 'tis:

Cronin, born in San Francisco in 1906, was purchased by the Nationals in 1928 from Kansas City of the American Association, after being unconditionally released by Pittsburgh following trials in 1925 and 1927.

As One Boston Manager to Another—



JOE CRONIN BILL McKECHNIE

When this picture was taken in the Southlands, not even the most far-sighted of the baseball prophets could picture Cronin and McKechnie as the leaders of the two major league ball clubs in Boston. But to paraphrase an old phrase, Fate works in strange fashion her wonders to perform. Cronin will be playing manager of the Sox for the next five years. GREEN SQUAD LANDS IN TOWN

By Bill Grimes

Dartmouths in town.

The Big Green squad came down from the hills of Hanover this morning and were hustled away to the Belmont Spring Country Club for lunch, after which they were to work out at the Stadium in their final drill for the annual game with Harvard on the morrow.

Coach Earl "Red Blaik, leading his first Dartmouth team to Boston, confined his comments on the clash to saying that tomorrow would give him first inkling of the real strength of his eleven.

"For five weeks we've been drilling the Indians, but how well they have learned their lessons, I haven't the slightest idea," stated the mentor.

"They looked good in their first four games but that may or not have been due to the weakness of the opposition. Harvard provides the first major test. I'm counting on my boys coming through but nothing they have shown to date would warrant me predicting victory."

From what your correspondent has seen of the Blaik eleven in practice, he would say that the Indians are better drilled in the fundamentals than any team that has come down from Hanover in years.

They also possess a [illegible] that altogether too many Dartmouth teams of recent seasons lacked.

This is largely due to the head coach and his assistants, Ellinger, Donchess and Gustafson.

Syracuse Leaves for Brown Game

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 26—Syracuse's varsity squad of [illegible] men left here this morning for Providence, R. I., where it will engage Brown on the morrow.

A stop at [illegible] for a light workout was to be made this afternoon.

Harris 'Shocked' at 'Loss of Job'

By International News Service

Washington, Oct. 26—Stanley "Bucky" Harris, deposed as manager of the Boston Red Sox by Joe Cronin, told International News Service over the telephone that "he was quite shocked."

"I don't like it a great deal," said Harris, "as it puts me right out of a job. Yes, I got a wire from Mr. Yawkey today advising me that Cronin was to take over my post as manager of the club.

"This was a real shock. I had hoped to lead the Red Sox again, particularly with Cronin there to strengthen the team's chances. But now I'm on the outside looking in. It's one of those things that happen in baseball, though, I guess."

Cronin "Surprised" at News of Sox Trade

San Francisco, Oct. 26—Joe Cronin said today [illegible] to the Boston Red Sox was a surprise to him.

The youthful former manager of the Senators, who confirmed reports he was given a five-year contract as player-manager of the Boston team, said the first he knew of it was a telephone call he received last night from President Clark Griffith of the Senators.

"I am sorry to be leaving Washington," he commented, "but I am happy to get into the Red Sox organization. I consider it the most progressive outfit in baseball right now.

"I hope to build up the club. There are a lot of fellows I might like to add, but it probably would be impossible to get them.

Owner Yawkey Promises Cronin "Free Hand"

New York, Oct. 26—Joe Cronin will be given a free hand in managing the Boston Red Sox, Owner Tom Yawkey said today shortly after the deal which brought the Senators' manager and star to Boston was announced.

"Cronin will be absolute boss," Yawkey said. "I will do everything possible to help him bolster the club. Any suggestions he makes regarding trades and deals for players will be given utmost consideration.

Griffith Made Deal as Duty to Cronin

Washington, Oct. 26—The biggest baseball deal ever completed that sent Joe Cronin to Boston to manage the Red Sox for five years started during the recent World Series and was made with the full knowledge and approval of the Washington shortstop, President Clark Griffith of the Senators said today.

When the sale was first proposed by Tom Yawkey, millionaire owner of the Boston club, Griffith laughed it off. However, Yawkey called him to New York a few days ago and made a new offer. Last night Grifffith returned from New York, telephoned Cronin and with his consent closed the deal.

"It was not the tremendous cash which prompted the 'deal,'" asserted Griffith as he announced the trade today.

"When Mr. Yawkey first made me the offer for Cronin at the World Series I flatly refused to consider selling him at all, and only reconsidered for the reason that Mr. Yawkey came up with an astounding offer of a five-year contract for Cronin, as well as a capable shortstop for us in Lyn Lary.

"This offer was so much in excess of what I ever could hope to pay him that I considered it my duty to give him the opportunity to accept."

Harvard to Give Green Real Fight, Says Hardwick

By Huntington R. (Tack) Hardwick

All-Time All American Harvard End

The Dartmouth Indian will enter the Stadium tomorrow with a clean slate and a marked determination to keep that enviable condition constant.

H. R. HARDWICK.

Were one to consider seriously the tales of woe emanating from Hanover, one would be practically overcome with pity. Steady streams of pathetic reports of this and that casualty would leave the impression that the Indian was in reality but a battered and broken crock, hiding his bruises and his suffering with war paint and stoicism.

Such heart-rending tales I have heard before, but practically never have I seen a Dartmouth team that did not deliver a noteworthy exhibition in the Stadium. If better players were on the squad and unavailable through injury—then certainly the substitutes helped themselves to a double portion of inspiration and rose in sheer desperation to unbelieved heights.

You may rest assured that John Harvard will be lulled into no false sense of security. Dartmouth is always dangerous.

I read further with considerable amusement that Dartmouth has no well-rounded or varied offense as in her games so far this season she has exhibited a very restricted and assortment of plays.

Perhaps Coach Blaik does not know many plays and no one tells him any. Perhaps again Coach Blaik has taught the team a well-rounded and varied attack, which up to the present has not been needed and therefore wisely withheld—Perhaps!

Harvard Backfield Ills Sure to Be Cured by Game Time

So let's concede Dartmouth has an aggressive and substantial line supported by a coterie of backs, including Captain Hill, Clark, Chamberlain, Deckert, Kenny, Handrahan, Aieta and Rand, some of whom may not be in the very pink of condition, but from whom a dangerous and well-balanced group, capable of upholding their end, will be selected.

Let us likewise concede that Coach Blaik's previous record at West Point is more than sufficient proof of unusual ability.

As for Harvard, the line has shown consistent development, the backs are displaying improvement and are acquiring greater polish in their execution of plays.

Their outstanding weaknesses in defending against a passing attack and in the handling of the kicking game have been sufficiently pronounced to assure the conscientious and painstaking attention of the coaching staff.

Improvement in these departments can be taken for granted.

It looks to me like a real battle.

How to Use a Straight Arm, Told by One Who Had One

I received a kind letter stating that my recent article on protection of the kicker had proved helpful and requesting a word on the use of the straight-arm.

I should be delighted to comply with that request. Here goes:

Proper efficiency in the use of the straight-arm is essential to a good back. It is a nicety of open field running that must be perfected by constant practice. Surprisingly few backs in the Stadium this season have employed it to the best advantage.

To begin with, in a good "straight-arm," the arm should not be straight. Rather it should be held partially bent and kept shifting.

Just as the tackler lunges, the arm should be shot out or straightened with a quick snap. It's really a shove, not a blow.

As the palm of the hand touches the tackler's head or shoulder, give a sharp push and at the same time pull the hips and the leg nearest the tackler away.

It is the combination of shove and hitch that breaks the timing of the tackler and prevents him from getting into the runner's body.

The reason the arm while running is kept bent and shifting is twofold: First, it must be bent to get that quick snap, that "z-u-h-h" into it; and, second, if held out straight, the tackler is apt to grab it.

That's a miserable method of tackling, to be sure, but it is surprising how frequently it is employed. Nothing makes a back look or feel sillier than to be halted in that manner.

There are times, however, when a tackler is coming with such speed that the sharp push of the arm and the hitching of the

Mr. Boston Says:—

Cheering Section for Redskins Game Sunday Concannon Day

By Jack Conway

DENNIS SHEA is going to give a dab of color to the Redskins-Chicago Cardinal game at Fenway Park Sunday afternoon by having a cheering section.

Professional football has given the public about everything but a cheering section. Mister Shea likes to refer to professional football as the "poor man's game." This is because you can get a good seat for as low as [illegible] cents.

Mr Boston

"We shall have a cheering section of 500 from Waltham," said the general manager of the Redskins. "It will be Ernie Concannon Day. Ernie comes from Waltham, and will be properly honored by his home town folks.

"Concannon played football at Waltham high and was later captain at New York University. He is 25 years old, six feet tall and weighs 220 pounds as he parades on the field to play guard for the Redskins. He scales a ton when he hits the rival guard.

"I know Ernie will like the Waltham cheering section. I think the public will also. Anyhow it will be something new for a professional game.

"Some of the advocates of the superiority of college football over the professional game have pointed to the fact we lacked daffy cheer leaders and cheering sections. We are now going to give the fans a cheering section, and maybe some of the sports writers will act as cheer leaders."

Cardinals Have Stars

YOU WILL find many stars in the lineup of the Cardinals. Included in the list are P[illegible] Pardoner, Homer Griffith, Roy Horstmann, Tommy Hinchman and Curly Hinchman.

Lone Star Dietz has had his team going on high this week and says they will click in the Sunday clash.

GREEN'S EDGE VERY SLIGHT, SAYS LOU

By Lou Little

Head Coach, Columbia University

(Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service)

New York, Oct. 26—Army and Dartmouth will face their first major opponents of the year tomorrow. Both have come along very nicely and have won their preliminary games without a great deal of effort. Army has looked the more impressive of the two.

From an all-around view it appears that Yale is not quite ready to face a team of Army's strength. Coach Pond has developed a team far beyond all expectations.

Still, in spite of this improvement, I doubt if Yale will win.

Harvard showed a strong defense against Holy Cross's running attack and had it been able to knock down the forward passes the Crusaders would have had a most unpleasant afternoon. From all accounts the Harvard linemen and ends were not rushing the passer.

Regardless of what defense a team may use to protect against forward passes and if the passer is not made to throw that ball in a hurry, many of them are going to be completed.

Dartmouth's margin over Harvard is very slight, if any. It is pretty much of a toss-up.

Those of you who have been interested in the debate as to which is the better football, the Warner or the Rockne variety, will have the opportunity to judge for yourself by the result of the Holy Cross-Colgate game.

Unless Colgate has been used up by the hard game of last Saturday against Ohio State, I feel that it should just about get under the wire.

Fordham may have a most difficult time with Southern Methodist. The Rams have been hard hit by injuries.

In their game with St. Mary's last week, they were pretty well used up and lost the services of Joe Maniaci. On top of all this there may be a mental let-down.

Southern Methodist should be favored to win.

Illinois and Notre Dame should turn in impressive games tomorrow against Michigan and Wisconsin respectively, while Navy and Princeton should dispose of Pennsylvania and Cornell.

If Pennsylvania had not lost the services of Kurlish, there may have been a surprise waiting here for Navy.

Stanford should defeat Southern California while Washington may have a much harder time with California than many expect.

We kept him in [illegible] the size of [illegible] say two tennis courts.

I would get him running [illegible] and then, chasing alongside, I would put one hand on his [illegible], hitch my hips and [illegible] and keeping [illegible], would "ride."

I found that if I timed [illegible] that I could get a great lift and a swell carry. Incidentally, the bull calf got into the spirit of the game and started dodging.

That wasn't so good.

Once my hand slipped, and I fell between those running legs. Down we both went, rolled over and over, and crashed against the fence.

The little calf turned his head and gave me one look—a wondering glance if ever I saw one. He let out a bleat—I could swear he said "you nut"—got up, shook himself and trotted away.

I could never get him to play again.

Trio of Murphys Enter Schoolboy Hall of Grid Fame

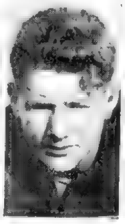
The Murphys roll into the grid news today. Here's John, Boston Latin fullback. John and two other Murphys from Brighton, not related, are Latin backs.

Robert Murphy, Latin halfback, is the second of the name on the school's backfield corps. Bob has been coming along fast.

Billy Murphy is the third of the Latin Murphys from Brighton. He's fast, and shifty. He intends to gains tomorrow.

Werner Neudorf holds down a guard berth for Cambridge Latin, and will go into action at Brookline tomorrow. Neudorf is a powerful lineman.

Bill Dubisz, Manchester Central backfield star, struts his very best football at the Malden high stadium tomorrow. Can kick, pass and carry. Malden fears him.



Here is the star center of the Arlington attack—Paul Dorington. Paul faces heavy duty tomorrow, when his team risks its perfect record against Medford,

ODDS ON DARTMOUTH UNJUSTIFIED--EGAN

By Dave Egan

I[illegible] the aged hills of New Hampshire comes the Dartmouth football team, ready as ever [illegible] will be to do battle with the [illegible] Harvard.

I[illegible] tomorrow [illegible] 2 p.m. the time and the Harvard Stadium the [illegible] games of [illegible].

[illegible] the Harvards [illegible] declared [illegible] the weather [illegible] altered [illegible] hazard [illegible] America.

[illegible] at the statement [illegible] was the first time in modern history that a publicity man has not announced that an extra-super-spe[illegible] was the zenith of all at[illegible]s and would positively sell [illegible] the Stadium, or the Garden, or Lyceum H[illegible]. Harry brushing a [illegible] he said.

RECEIPTS NECESSARY

"We hope that the $1.65 seats will be gobbled up before game time Saturday. But, I dunno. In fact, I am positively certain that I dunno."

Of course college football is merely a sport, and gate receipts simply a necessary evil. You must not think that the Harvard A. A. has descended to crass worry [illegible] the "gate," as professional fight promoters and wrestling promoters do. It is just the principle of the thing with Frank Ryan.

GREEN SQUAD ARRIVES

Head Coach Eddie Casey of the Harvards and Earl "Red" Blaik of Dartmouth, however, have no [illegible] about the amount of money which will be propelled into the strong boxes in Cambridge and Hanover. They are building dream houses and scheming schemes, each with the high resolve of fielding a winning team.

The Dartmouth squad arrived at the Winchester Station at 10.50 a. m. today and was whisked to its headquarters at the Belmont Spring Country Club. This afternoon they will practice in the Stadium, to be followed shortly thereafter by the Crimson.

Every major hotel in Boston will conduct Harvard-Dartmouth dances tonight and tomorrow night, and if all the notes that will be tooted from brass instruments could be laid end to end, they would reach almost as far as the notes Colonel Egan signed when times were good.

CRIMSON ON SHORT END

Dartmouth has been installed a 10-8 favorite in the betting. This, I contend, is a false price, for nobody, including Head Coach "Red" Blaik, knows how the Indians will act when under fire.

While Harvard has been fighting the pit-dogs against Bates and Brown and Holy Cross, Dartmouth has been mooching through a schedule that a first class high school team could undertake. The animated tackling dummies who have faced them were to wit and as follows: Norwich, Vermont, Maine and Virginyah, suh. In those [illegible] games, Dartmouth rolled up 1[illegible] points using only half a dozen plays, and was not scored upon.

The chief weapon employed by the students of Professor "Red" Blaik, who is the "brain," has been a plain, unvarnished off-tackle smash. Well, the pulverizing forward wall of Holy Cross could not make a dent in the Harvard line, and it will be a gee-whiz of a surprise if the Dartmouths do.

If they have devloped a forward passing attack, they have done so since last week. Miracles happen of course. Doesn't "Jafsie" remember a voice he heard two years ago in a grave-yard in the Bronx? Didn't Huey Long give some money away? Hasn't Peggy Hopkins Etcetera Joyce kept out of the papers for at least ten weeks?

HARVARD SHIFTS TACTICS

It will be something approaching a miracle if those Dartmouth boys bob up with a sound passing attack. Last week, they had no end of trouble in getting their running attack to function and without an uproarious running attack, you may throw your forward passes into the nearest ash barrel.

Further and more, Eddie Casey and his assistant coaches are determined that the Harvard boys will be a great deal spryer in their defense against passes than they were last Saturday against that fellow who pitched like Dizzy Dean for Holy Cross—Jim Hobin.

Harvard's ends are not going to stand there and gawk at the gentleman who intends to throw the ball to a team-mate down the field. In a fatherly manner, they have been informed that one of the better ways of stopping a forward pass is by rushing the passer.

And the defensive backs have been instructed as follows:

"Don't bet on hosses! Don't let the boogey-man frighten you! And don't let an eligible pass receiver get between you and the goal line!"

None of those things are being done this season.

> So-o-o-o-o-o——
> With a wah-hoo-wah
> And a rah, rah, rah,
> I'm going to the Stadium
> 'Cause it ain't so fah!

Undefeated Schoolboy Grid Teams in Danger

By Bill Connell

School football teams polish off the October program tomorrow afternoon with several unbeaten teams in danger and snappy action on every quarter.

Medford at unbeaten Arlington, Manchester, N. H., Central at Malden, St. James at unbeaten Lawrence, Gardner at Fitchburg, with both risking perfect records. Revere at unbeaten Everett. Melrose at unbeaten Winthrop. Salem at Peabody, unbeaten Beverly at Haverhill, Danvers at Marblehead, Quincy at Newton, and Cambridge Latin at Brookline, are the highlights.

Arlington has a hard assignment. It has not been up to par physically, despite its win over Malden. Co-Captain Bill Collins is fit for the first time in a month, but there are weak spots on the team.

FITCHBURG'S RECORD

Medford, fortunately minus injuries after a stretch of hard games, has only a letdown after the defeat by Everett to fear. The powerful Medford line still is thundering, and the backs have improved. Arlington fans are confident but there's a chance for an upset here.

Manchester Central, coached by canny Hubie McDonough, is well balanced and has Bill Dubisz, veteran back, for a triple threat at Malden. The latter, tripped by Arlington a week ago, faces a hard time trying to regain stride in this affair.

St. James of Haverhill has shown uncommon power in some of its games and can force Lawrence to the limit. If the mid-season letdown catches up with Mark Devlin's boys tomorrow, St. James can surprise.

Fitchburg's winning record stretches back. But it may be conquered tomorrow when it entertains unbeaten and untied Gardner which boasts four able backs and a good line.

BEVERLY MAY MISSTEP

Everett hardly need fear the invasion of Revere, yet the latter came near upsetting Waltham two weeks ago, and if it hits its best pace can bother Everett. Which needs Sammy Gentile to be at tops, but may do without him in order to rest his creaky foot for later heavy duty.

Melrose has shown nothing to cause Winthrop worry as the latter entertains. Winthrop's Phil Chardon, brilliant back, and Paul Farmer, ace center, have been on the injured list. If the pair can't help out, Winthrop will need to work hard to come out ahead.

Salem, beaten only by Lawrence, figures to regain winning form at Peabody. Beverly has won all starts, but at Haverhill runs into stormy weather. Danvers won't enjoy its visit to Marblehead, for the 'Headers can, and no doubt will, baffle their guests.

Quincy at Newton appears one of the best battles of the card. With Quincy's Malvesti barraging the now fighting Newton team with passes. Cambridge Latin at Brookline pairs two old foes in a Suburban League meeting. Both have been improving and will provide a close scrap.

Unbeaten Waltham had a risky journey on its hands, going to Lynn Stadium to play English, which has been just a step away from winning four of its games.

Pitcher Guy Bush in Auto Accident

Chicago, Oct. 26 (AP)—Guy Bush, pitcher of the Chicago Cubs, broke his new automobile in so well last night he'd have to buy a new one.

It was badly damaged when it collided with another car. Bush was cut and bruised, but Thomas McCullough, a salesman riding with him, suffered a broken nose and a possible fracture of the skull. Both men were taken to a hospital.

TERRIERS OFF FOR VERMONT

Boston University's cripples limped away from North Station this morning hoping to be able to stand up long enough tomorrow at Burlington, tomorrow, to defeat University of Vermont for its second straight victory.

Thirty-three players, two coaches and the trainer made the trip. They expected to arrive at Burlington this afternoon in time for a short workout.

The team's greatest concern is at center, where young John Morosini is receiving his big opportunity in the absence of Elmer Bussell and Sam Lourie.

If the going gets too tough, Captain George Abodeely is expected to be moved over to center.

B. C. COMEBACK LOOKED FOR

A peppier, faster and more slashing [illegible] play will be exhibited [illegible] when they [illegible] Friars from Providence College. The coaches expect a return to the form that they showed against Fordham.

The outstanding performer in the Friar lineup is little Omer Landry, who is only five feet six inches tall and tips the scale at just 154. Speedy and slippery the Friar offense is largely built around this fo[illegible].

This will be the fifth meeting of these two teams, and it is of interest to know that Joe McKenney was the Eagle quarterback on the first B. C. team to play Providence.

Joe McGee and Tom Bride, head and backfield coaches respectively at Providence, were also on that first P. C. team that played the Eagles.

Tufts to Start Grinnell

Coach Lew Manly boards the bus this afternoon with his Tufts squad of 33 players to invade Williamstown for tomorrow's game with Williams.

The backfield will see many shifts throughout the game for Charlie Foberg, Raymie MacLean and Tony Spath have proved themselves good enough to rate varsity position.

Babe Ruth May Pilot Senators, Report

"Babe" Ruth may have found his spot for 1935.

The announcement this morning that Joe Cronin had been signed as player-manager of the Red Sox for a five-year term was not followed from Washington by the appointment of a successor there for Cronin.

It is rumored, however, that George Herman Ruth, public enemy number one to American League pitchers for the past 20 years, will be signed to manage the Senators.

George Risks Title in Bout With Browning

By Jack Conway

Ed Don George will try to prove he doesn't require the assistance of a stone floor to lick Jim Browning when they meet in a finish bout, best two falls out of three, at the Garden tonight.

In their last tussle, Browning scored the first toss. He later was knocked through the ropes by George. Jim landed on the stone floor, and George toppled through the ropes and crashed on top of him.

Referee Charley Donnell got tangled up with the wrestlers, and also did a nose dive out of the ring.

When the three men were untangled, George climbed back into the ring. Browning and Donnell were out cold, and Referee Sam Smith, rushed in as a pinch hitter gave the fall to the champion by forfeiture.

Browning returned to the battle, but he was suffering from a back injury. He was tossed quickly.

George's title will be at stake tonight. He is in the best possible condition and is confident he will win.

Ed says he will set a furious clip from the start and that Browning will not score a single fall. Browning, on the other hand, is of the opinion he will win the championship on straight falls.

Browning has youth, strength and wrestling ability, and will give George more opposition than he received from Londos.

Len Macaluso, former Colgate star, will oppose Casey Kazanjian of Stanford in the semifinal.

Macaluso was headed for the wrestling heights a few years ago. He then suffered a leg injury which held back his progress.

The injured member is all right again and Macaluso is once more talking of the day when he will be king of the grapplers.

MOCK TURTLE, IN FIFTH RACE, WILSON'S BEST AT 'GANSETT

Hanley Favors Colgate by Single Touchdown

By L. B. "Pat" Hanley
Head Coach at Boston University

(Written Exclusively for and Copyrighted by the Boston American and the International News Service)

Worcester will be the scene of what should be the year's greatest grid battle in New England tomorrow when Holy Cross plays host to the Colgate Red Raiders from the Chenango Valley.

This clash will not offset such colorful tilts as the Harvard-Dartmouth and the Yale-Brown games, but the scheduled battle in the heart of the Commonwealth will be one of the big factors in deciding the Eastern football champions for 1934.

The game is nearly a tossup and after [illegible] Saturday's exhibition by both elevens, there are two things that must be considered before any selection is made.

If Holy Cross could do little with its running attack against Harvard and Catholic University, I cannot quite see how it will be particularly successful against Colgate, as I know Andy Kerr well enough to believe he will have a line much more powerful than either of the frontier walls the Crusaders have opposed the past two week-ends.

DARTMOUTH SHOULD WIN

Colgate has a great team. This was proved last Saturday against Ohio State. But the only thing I anticipate is that after the Red Raiders' [illegible] battle with the Buckeyes, there may be a letdown tomorrow.

If a winner must be picked, I lean slightly toward Colgate, by the narrow margin of a touchdown.

Over in Allston, Harvard plays host to Dartmouth. The Big Green, with its devastating running attack which has swept through [illegible] opponents, receives its first real test.

I do not believe Harvard is quite strong enough to stop Dartmouth in its first major test, but if Dartmouth fails to display its much heralded aerial attack, the battle will be a great deal closer than many expect. Personally, I don't believe Dartmouth's margin will hardly be more than one touchdown.

While Dartmouth is receiving its first major test, the Army also meets its first real opponent when it stacks up against Yale at the Bowl tomorrow.

The game should be a ding-dong fight, with both teams scoring, but Army emerging the victor by a touchdown.

Another major New England tilt [illegible] at the Aldrich Stadium [illegible] Brown will be host [illegible] McLaughry [illegible] at the hands of Yale revamped his entire eleven and will hope for the best tomorrow.

Unfortunately for "Tuss," Vic Hanson has a great team at Syracuse this year, and the Orangemen should win by a pair of scores.

PREDICTS DEFEAT FOR TUFTS

The Pine Tree State starts its own private warfare tomorrow to determine the 1934 football championship in Maine. Bowdoin goes to Colby and Bates invades University of Maine.

These games have been notoriously famous for upsetting the form chart year after year, and therefore I am going to predict Bowdoin to defeat Colby in an upset but will string along with Bates to defeat University of Maine.

I look for Tufts, which has been undefeated to date, to lose its first game tomorrow to Williams. The Purple has an outstanding team this year and should be able to turn back the Jumbos for the second successive season.

My Boston University team goes to Burlington to play University of Vermont.

We are favorites because of our surprising victory over Bates last Saturday, but due to my long injured list, I will be content if we can leave Vermont with any margin of victory.

COLGATE MAY UPSET PURPLE BOWL PLANS

By Walter Kiley

Worcester, Oct. 26—Fear and trepidation smote through the far flung stretches of this city on the eve of the epic battle between the Red Raiders of Colgate and the Crusaders of Holy Cross.

Victory will prove to the football world that Holy Cross, undefeated in five games and [illegible] the nation's [illegible] worthy of [illegible] Bowl [illegible]. Defeat will [illegible] pinnacle.

The Crusader hopes [illegible] brightened [illegible] when Charles "Buzz" Harvey, famous left tackle, was released from St. Vincent's Hospital.

Harvey suffered a [illegible] injury in the Harvard game. While physicians [illegible] he would not be able to play against Colgate Harvey insisted he would play even if he had to leave the hospital tied to a cot.

"Harvey may play Saturday in event of a vital necessity," said Dr. Joseph P. Mulhern, "if within the next 24 hours his knee has full range of motion."

Len Avery, the wingman who scintillated at the Stadium a week ago, is now slated for the sidelines and, so too, is Eddie Britt, 190-pound fullback from Lexington. But fortunately capable replacements are available.

Ray O'Connor of Malden is the man who [illegible] to have [illegible].

Britt is a ball carrier, pure and simple. Blocking and tackling have been distasteful to him. O'Connor not only runs well and is good on the end of passes, but is exceedingly valuable in the blocking department.

In the event that Harvey is kept out of the play, Dave Gavin of Dorchester, a product of Boston Latin, is to get the call at tackle. Weighing 2[illegible] pounds he has been coming fast.

The Holy Cross backfield will consist of Tommy Callan at quarter, Nick Morris and Hobin at the halves and O'Connor at fullback.

The return of two sophomore stars, Len Kuziora and Joe Yablonski, who were hurt in previous encounters, aids the second string backfield.

Rex Kidd will quarterback this quartet, which is to be completed by Vin Dougherty, thus making an all-sophomore group.

But this tells little about those great Colgate backs, Marty McDonough of Woburn, Jack Fritts, Chin Lyon, Kern, Kuk, Irwin, Offenhamer and Marshall; or those giant wingmen, Joe Bogdanski and Bob Billings; or those powerful tackles, Brooke and Wasicek. Wow what a team.

Husky Pups Start New Men at Tufts

Gerry Tatton, N. U. freshman coach, planned to start four new men this afternoon when Tufts, '38, meets his unbeaten Husky Pups at Medford.

Bob Birchnell, Dedham athlete, was to start at left end; Ray Cheney, Saugus, guard; "Les" Hintea, former Maynard back, fullback, and Tom Kenney, Memorial High gridster, right half.

TIME SUPPLY IS PICKED TO WIN SIXTH RACE

outstanding betting proposition here tomorrow afternoon.

BALANCER, GRAND ACRE, TUFFY G.

FIRST RACE—Purse $1,200, claiming; three-year-olds and up; one and [illegible] miles:

Peace Treaty ..x100 [illegible]
[illegible] Chancer [illegible]
Scotch Bride ..x [illegible] Grand Acre ..x112
[illegible] Fingerwood 110
Blue Champ .... [illegible]

BALANCER has only to run back of either of her two good efforts in back of LOFTY LADY in order to grace the winner's circle. The opposition is by far the weakest that he has encountered at the session. GRAND ACRE is fond of the racing strip and shapes up as strictly the one to fear. TUFFY G. has trained impressively and looks next best.

MAD BETH, GENERAL A, PLAYING ON.

SECOND RACE—Purse $1,[illegible], claiming; three-year-olds and up; six furlongs:

Uncle Less........112 aGeneral A 118
Caboose ....117 Playing On 118
Secu at .... 106 Moane Kenia ... x
Morheart ...... x107 Fashione Thru ...x
[illegible] x [illegible] aMad Beth ..... [illegible]
B [illegible] x
aB. B. [illegible]

The B. B. stable entry of MAD BETH and GENERAL A looks as good as anything else on post dope in this affair. Either is capable of winning. PLAYING ON was never better as may be attested by her last couple of outings.

HAPPY HELEN, SYNOD, GAY CREST

THIRD RACE—Purse $1200, claiming; [illegible]

[illegible] Happy Helen ... x10[illegible]
[illegible]
Gay Crest [illegible] x1[illegible]

The event shapes up as strictly a two horse affair between HAPPY HELEN and SYNOD. Under the weight arrangements I'm forced to string along with the former. The daughter of Happy Argo has been up against it in recent starts, but appears well suited by all the conditions of this number. Although well burdened under 115 pounds SYNOD figures to give the top one plenty of trouble. GAY CREST, a juvenile that has yet to run to his fast morning trials, looks as good as anything else for the minor award.

MINEY MYERSON, CHINESE EMPRESS, QUEL JEU

FOURTH RACE—Purse $1200, claiming; [illegible]

[illegible]
Golden Van ..... 113 Miney Myerson [illegible]

MINEY MYERSON is favored by an outside post position and should escape all early interference in this affair. On past dope, she is fully capable of handling the issue. CHINESE EMPRESS, a fast morning worker, shapes up next best. QUEL JEU, a beaten favorite last out, should break into the picture.

MOCK TURTLE, MOTTO, PERADVENTURE.

FIFTH RACE—Purse $5000 added, the Jeanne D'Arc Stakes, two-year-olds, fillies, six furlongs:

Hope Eternal ...114 Good Gamble .. 111
Mock Turtle ... 118 Peradventure ... 111
He [illegible] ... [illegible] Sweeper ... 111
Motto ... 122

MOCK TURTLE has been especially pointed for this event. The clockers declare that she is fit to run for a king's ransom. Just a question of a smooth ride. If anything upsets my dope it will likely be MOTTO. The latter is one of the really top-notch fillies of the year. PREADVENTURE turned in a whale of a race in the rich Selima stakes at Laurel last Satifrday. But for poor luck the Greentree miss might have won that affair.

TIME SUPPLY, HIGH GLEE, LADY REIGH

SIXTH RACE—Purse $1500, the Quonsett Handicap, three-year-olds and up, one and one-sixteenth miles:

Time Supply .. 117 aRoustabout 111
Mr Khayyam ...122 Thomasville 100
Lady Reigh 109 aHigh Glee 109
aV. C. Whitney entry.

TIME SUPPLY might have been a dead short thoroughbred when he finished third behind Top Row and Lady Reigh in that What Cheer Handicap last Saturday. That effort was his first over a distance of ground in quite some time. HIGH GLEE is favored by a shift in weights. LADY REIGH finished in front of the top pair in their last outing and figures to offer stern contention in this event.

SPEEDY SKIPPY, HOKUAO, BIG BEAU

SEVENTH RACE—purse $1200, claiming, three-year-olds and up one and one-sixteenth miles:

Chrysmute .....x100 Hokuao x111
Speedy Skippy.. 111 Brass Monkey..x111
Live One ..... 113 Big Beau 113

SPEEDY SKIPPY has drubbed this same sort of opposition in the past. Just a question of his present condition. HOKUAO turned in a clever performance to drub Live One and Jamison last out. BIG BEAU is endowed with a bit of class and should head the others.

ENGLISH PICKED OVER B. C. H. AT FENS

Two old rivals of school football moved to Fenway Park today for the feature game of the afternoon's double-header with Boston College High pitted against English. The other [illegible] matched Mechanic Arts and Commerce.

English with Roger Battles at quarter and A. [illegible]chello at fullback, appeared the probable winner by a small score. The English line was weak at the start of the season but has developed and was a menace to the light B. C. H. frontier last [illegible].

Mechanic Arts, rather a one-man ball team, with Chester Smith in the important role, was an even bet against Commerce.

Famous Cooks Forward Line Broken

By Associated Press

Winnipeg, Man.—Some fans who saw the Allan Cup finals last spring may think it's the Moncton Hawks playing here Saturday instead of the Montreal Maroons and New York Rangers who open their exhibition series then. Bert Connolly, speedy Moncton forward, has left no doubt decided to turn pro with the Rangers while the Maroons expect Stinny McManus and Aubrey Webster signed up and on the ice.

The Rangers' famous forward line of the Cook brothers and Frank Boucher appears finally to have been broken up. Bill Cook has dropped back to a defense post in practice sessions, while Cecil Dillon, a younger and faster player, has taken his old right wing berth. Butch Keeling, Murray Murdoch and Vic Ripley compose the second line. With Cook on the back line the Rangers have three defensemen even though Ching Johnson and Earl Seibert are holdouts. The others are Ott Heller and Alex Levinsky.

Saint John, N. B.—The Montreal Canadiens squad is rapidly being reduced to a convenient size for the latter stages of the training season. Jacques Toupin and Paul Ranger left for Quebec to join the Braves Canadiens farm last night and Bob McCully is expected to follow soon. Leo Bourcier, Ray Malenfant and Rene Boudreau, Montreal amateurs, also went back after tryouts and the only candidates who seem sure to make the jump from the Simon pure ranks are Jack McGill and Nels Crutchfield.

Fort Erie, Ont.—The Buffalo Bisons of the International League have purchased Dick Benson, former Syracuse and Cleveland center from the Boston Bruins. He will team with Roter Roth on the Bison line.

London, Ont.—Tory Gregg, veteran minor league star, has decided to retire from hockey and devote all his time to business. Gregg failed to make the major league grade two years ago after one of his best seasons and was hampered last season by a leg injury which still bothers him.

The Tecumsehs have one unusual candidate for the position left open by Gregg's retirement. He is Robert Thompson, a deaf mute who hails from Locknow, Ont. He has shown considerable promise.

Mat Results

Columbus, O.—Stanley Buresh, Australia lightweight, threw Billy Parker, Boston Negro, in 47:17, thus earning match with Midget Fischer, title claimant.

Ottawa, Ont.—Earl McCready, 225, Amulet, Sask., defeated Henry Piers, 215, Holland, straight falls.

Camden, N. J.—Rudy Dusek, 205, Omaha, defeated Vic Christy, 214, California, two falls to one.

Cincinnati—Charles (Midget) Fischer, 172, Butternut, Wis., threw Joe Parelli, 175, Brooklyn.

REDSKINS FIELD STRONG TEAM SUNDAY

For the first time this year, the Boston Redskins will appear at full strength as they match wits with the Chicago Cardinals at Fenway Park Sunday afternoon.

Inexperience and injuries have kept the Redskins from leading the Eastern division of the pro league, in the opinion of Coach Dietz.

"From now on we will be the hardest team to beat in the pro ranks," stated Lone Star this morning. "Wright, Sorboe, McPhail, Rantner and Hokuf have been out at one time or another this year.

"Not until this week have I had a full squad capable of playing 60 minutes of football. The difference will be evidenced on Sunday."

The passing department will be much improved. Phil Sorboe and Pug Rentner are back in shape and with an extra week in which to [illegible] their accuracy should do [illegible] in the overhead game.

[illegible] knows the weaknesses of the Cardinals from having played with them on the Coast and his knowledge will serve in good stead for the Redskins.

Mikulak, Pardonner, Griffith, Horstman, Tommy Murphy and Hinchman, in the Cards' backfield are all fine ball cariers.

But the Redskins' line recruits, husky fellows, have now mastered the arts of pro football and, unless the unforeseen happens, should smother the best that the visitors throw at them.

I WISH MY OWNER SMOKED EDGEWORTH. BUT HE SAYS HE CAN'T AFFORD IT.
EDGEWORTH IS REALLY MORE ECONOMICAL . . . A PIPEFUL OFTEN LASTS AN HOUR. YOUR OWNER HAS THE WRONG IDEA.
AND WHAT FLAVOR ...WHAT MILDNESS... MY OWNER SAYS HE WOULDN'T SMOKE ANYTHING BUT EDGEWORTH.
EDGEWORTH EXTRA HIGH GRADE READY-RUBBED SMOKING TOBACCO LARUS & BRO. CO. RICHMOND, VA. U.S.A.
We heard a pipe smoker say, "I'd like to smoke Edgeworth, but I can't afford it." The truth is—

ANY MAN WHO SMOKES A PIPE CAN SAVE MONEY SMOKING EDGEWORTH

EDGEWORTH is highest quality and is 15 cents a tin. Before you decide that you are saving money by smoking cheaper tobaccos, check up on the number of hours of smoking you are getting per package. More and more smokers are reporting fifty minutes to an hour a pipeful with Edgeworth. Where can you find a pipe tobacco you can enjoy that will give you more hours of smoking per tin than that?

Remember, it's not the first cost—but "the hours I spend with thee" that decide what pipe smoking really costs.

If you are trying to economize, why endure a tobacco you do not really enjoy, when you may experience the superb flavor and mildness of Edgeworth and save money besides?

Get a 15-cent tin of Edgeworth and count the smoking hours it gives you. Experience the thrifty pleasure of an hour a pipeful.

MANUFACTURER'S NOTE—The reason Edgeworth burns so much longer in your pipe is the extra Edgeworth process used in its preparation. It is a technical matter too complicated to describe here. We mention it so that you will know that the long-burning feature of Edgeworth is based on a definite fact. Not all pipe smokers can get an hour a pipeful from Edgeworth. That is because smoking methods differ. But any pipe smoker can get more hours of smoking out of Edgeworth than from fast-burning tobaccos. Larus & Bro. Co., Tobacconists since 1877, Richmond, Va.

Enjoy EDGEWORTH and save money

Aw, Boo Hoo! Who Wants to Be a Perfect Baby, Anyhow?

GLORIA PESERI ALAN WOLF MARIA ZARRELLA GERALDINE BARBARA ROBERTA CHERICUZIO

"BRRR! IT'S COLD!" And a person's birthday suit is no sort of a costume for a Boston October. Anyhow, Alan Wolf of Malden thinks these baby beauty contests are just sissy stuff for a regular guy. Geraldine Barbara of West Somerville wishes she was home, too. And Gloria Peeri of Medford, Maria Zarrella of East Boston, and Robert Chericuzio of Somerville aren't happy, either, it appears, as they wait for health exams in the American Legion-Boston Evening American contest for the "Perfect New Era Baby." 300 Charlestown Babies Inspected in Contest

M[illegible] their best bib-and-tucker [illegible] their prettiest—or bawling their loudest more than 300 babies were weighed, measured and otherwise scientifically inspected by a group of medical men yesterday at the 79 High street, Charlestown, health unit.

The "New Era" baby contest as it is called is being held under the auspices of the James E. Welch Post, American Legion, in co[illegible] with the Boston Evening American in the interests of Americanization and service to the younger generation.

They were given points on height, weight, ears and eyes, nose and throat, chest, skin and appearance, bone and structure, abdominal and nervous system.

Examinations are being made at the various health units through the courtesy of Dr. Francis X. Mahoney, Boston's health commissioner, and Dr. Charles F. Wilinsky. They will be held this and tomorrow afternoon at 25 Blossom street, West End.

JEWS PROTEST BAN BY HOTEL

By Universal Service

Washington, Oct. 26—A flood of protest that has reached both the state capitol in Richmond and the White House in Washington has been loosed against alleged discrimination against Jews by the management of Hotel Chamberlin, noted resort at Old Point Comfort, Va.

Senators Carter Glass and Harry F. Byrd have wired to President Roosevelt protesting against the hotel advertising in effect it does not cater to Jews.

At the same time the American Automobile Association announced it was requesting the Virginia state highway commissioner to have billboards carrying the hotel's advertisements removed from all state highways.

The matter was first brought to official attention here several days ago when Rabbi Mendoza of Norfolk lodged a complaint with military authorities at Norfolk and it was referred to the War Department. The department held it was beyond its jurisdiction to dictate to the hotel management who it should or should not entertain as guests.

The hotel is built on land, part of the Fortress Monroe reservation, leased from the federal government.

Lamb Is Again Feature of Week-End Market

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast over Station WAAB.

A rise of a few cents may be noted in the price of some fish on the market this weekend, but there is great opportunity presented by oysters and clams to serve a good old fashioned oyster stew or clam chowder. There's nothing quite as good before or after going to the football game or for a Halloween Party. Oysters are selling from 25 cents to 35 cents a pint and clams 2[illegible] cents to 45 cents a pint. Scallops are a little more expensive being 45 cents a pint for the sea scallops and 70 cents a pint for the cape scallops.

Haddock and cod have increased in price, selling at 15 cents a pound instead of 10 cents as they have been for several months. Mackerel is 18 cents a pound and halibut sells at 30 cents to 50 cents, depending on whether you choose the eastern or western. Blue fish, which is in season and very popular, is 25 cents a pound and striped bass is 35 cents a pound. Lobster is available and comes from the coast of Maine, the live 45 cents a pound, boiled 60 cents and lobster meat $1.6[illegible]

LAMB LEADS MEATS

For the best value in meats for the weekend you will probably want to select lamb. At the chain stores the legs are 17 cents. Quarters are around 11c a pound and rib chops are selling for 23c. Face of rump beef this weekend is selling for 25c.

Turkeys vary in price from 30c to 4[illegible]c a pound. These are all native, coming from Middlebor[illegible] and Vermont. The price depends on the farm from which they come. Packaged hams are selling at 25c a pound. These are the modern type which are so easy to prepare, no soaking necessary to remove any excess salt. They may be baked for the entire process instead of parboiling as has been done in the past. Wild duck, raised on farms, sell at $4.00 a pair. They have the same flavor as the real wild duck. And by the way, we want to tell you of a very interesting demonstration that is going to be given at the Martha Lee Cooking School on Tuesday evening, October 30, and Wednesday afternoon, October 31, by Mr. Horace Gardner of Thresher and Kelley. He is one of the most expert meat cutters in the city and will cut a whole lamb and also a side of beef. There will also be recipes for tasty and economical meat dishes.

GET A LIFT WITH A CAMEL!

WHEN YOU FEEL "ALL IN"—

CRAWFORD BURTON...gentleman rider...twice winner of the Maryland Hunt Cup...dean of the strenuous sport of steeplechase riding...and a Camel smoker. Everyone is subject to strain. Hence the importance to people in every walk of life of what Mr. Burton says below about Camels.

HOUSEWIFE. Mrs. Charles Daly, who comes from Marquette, Mich., says: "I keep house—like millions of other women. And we all know how much energy a woman has to put into that job! My way of renewing energy is to smoke a Camel. Camels do pick up my energy when I feel tired, and they have a mild, delicate flavor that a woman likes."

TRAIN DISPATCHER. "I need healthy nerves," says Russell J. Woodman, "for there just can't be any mistakes on this job. Camels never upset my nerves. And they are full of real flavor!"

SPORTSMAN. Rex Beach, famous big game fisherman and writer, says: "When I've gotten a big fellow safely landed my next move is to light a Camel, and I feel as good as new."

AIR HOSTESS. Miss Marian McMichael, of American Airlines, says: "I watch out for the comfort of 12 to 15 passengers. When the run is over, my first move is to light a Camel. A Camel quickly relieves any feeling of tiredness."

Have you tried this enjoyable way of heightening energy?

Smokers everywhere have discovered for themselves that Camels give them a delightful "energizing effect." And that there is no pleasanter way to refresh oneself when tired out...listless...dispirited or "blue," than to "get a lift with a Camel."

Here's a typical experience. Crawford Burton, the famous American steeplechase rider, is speaking: "Whether I'm tired from riding a hard race, or from the pressure and tension of a crowded business day, I feel refreshed and restored just as soon as I get a chance to smoke a Camel. So I'm a pretty incessant smoker, not only because Camels give me a 'lift' in energy, but because they taste so good! And never yet have Camels upset my nerves." Note these important points: that Camels taste so good. And that they do make available your stored-up energy.

You have heard the experience of others. Science tells us that Camel's "energizing effect" has been fully confirmed. So try Camels yourself. You can smoke them constantly. For Camels are made from finer and MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS. They never taste flat...never get on your nerves.

FEDERAL ACE DETECTIVE'S LIFE STORY WILL BE PRODUCED ON SCREEN

Lights and Shadows

By

Boston will not witness Libby Holman's return to the stage prior to her New York premiere. "Revenge With Music," the operetta produced by Harold B. Franklin and Arch Selwyn, will play Philadelphia instead of Boston for its break-in. Miss Holman is starred and Charles Winninger and Georges Metaxa are featured. The show was to have its world premiere at the Shubert Theater on November 6, the night after the opening at the Colonial Theater of "Anything Goes."

Cancellation of the Boston engagement came with the decision that one musical show at a time, following the early season rush of big song and dance attractions, would be enough. "Anything Goes" accordingly will have the field to itself [illegible].

Much has been written about the presence in the cast of "Anything Goes" of Ethel Merman, William Gaxton and Victor Moore. Little has been said about Bettina Hall, [illegible] sister of Natalie Hall, who has tasted fame aplenty herself. These two good actresses are natives of North Easton. It is remembered in North Easton—where they remember scrupulously—that the Sisters Hall made their joint debut when each was four years old. A feature of the debut came when Bettina paused solemnly in the first line of her song to collect a peanut from the platform floor.

Some years later Winthrop Ames, who was their North Easton neighbor, signed the girls to join the ensemble of his Gilbert and Sullivan company. Bettina was shortly singing leading roles in the troupe. A few months later, Bettina joined her sister Natalie, who by now was in grand opera. The sisters played two [illegible] of the title roles in a musical called "Three Little Girls." Max Gordon then signed Bettina to sing the leading feminine role in "The Cat and the Fiddle," and that was her most recent appearance in Boston.

S. N. Behrman, the playwright, is in town. Jack McGovern invited him last night to attend the Harvard-Dartmouth game. Mr. Behrman declined with thanks. It seems that during four years of Harvard the noted playwright was present at exactly one football game. "I caught a bad cold," he said. Mr. Behrman's new play, "Rain from Heaven," is being cast by himself and the Theater Guild. Diana Wynyard was wanted for the leading role, but she is opening in London in a new play next week and the play's chances for success make it impossible to count on Miss Wynyard's availability for Broadway.

Larry Funk and his band, last year's hit at the Barclay Club, will be the featured attraction at the Hotel Brunswick Casino, which opens Hallowe'en Night. Vaughn Munroe, radio baritone; Muriel Sherman, contralto; Elizabeth Houston and Danny Harden, Sam Roberts and the Rythmic Trio will complete the entertainment roster.

Last of Series

"Imperial Peiping and Manchukuo," the last in the series of Branson De Cou Dream pictures, will be given this evening at Tremont Temple. The program will be repeated tomorrow at 2:30.

Melvin Purvis' Captures of Nation's Public Enemies Will Be Dramatized

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service

Los Angeles, Oct. 26—Melvin Purvis, who overnight became one of America's national heroes when he brought Dillinger to justice and saw that "Pretty Boy" Floyd paid the penalty for his crimes, is to be in the movies. Not Mr. Purvis himself, of course, but the story of his life, with the title of "Federal Dick," which Emanuel Cohen will produce under the auspices of the Department of Justice for Paramount. This story, Mr. Cohen says, will in no way be harmful to young American boyhood since neither Dillinger nor Floyd is to be made a hero.

Louella O. Parsons

It's Purvis who will wear the movie medals. George Raft and Cary Grant are set for the leads and the story, by Grover Jones and William Slavens McNutt, is in the process of being written.

The production of "David Copperfield" is so much more of an undertaking than David Selznick or any of those concerned realized that it's now being split into units with other directors assisting George Sukor in getting scenes. Leontine Sagan, famous European director and the gal who brought "Maedchen in Uniform" to the screen, has been assigned to one unit with a view to facilitating production. And here's something: Charles Laughton, who has been fussing ever since he was put into the role of Micawber, steps out of the cast in favor of W. C. Fields. With all due respect to Laughton's talents I just can't think of anyone who would make a better Micawber than Bill Fields.

Sally O'Neil is back in town after ten months in New York and her boy friend, Tommy Guinan, is right along with her. Tommy is a brother of the late Texas Guinan and the rumor is pretty current that he and Sally are secretly married. At any rate, Tommy wasn't going to take a chance letting Sally come way out to Hollywood alone without his chaperonage. Their romance, which has endured for over a year, is as much on the up and up as it was when the little O'Neil girl first fell in love with Tex's brother.

Chatter in Hollywod

Has there been a split in the Ginger Rogers-Lew Ayres' romance? Lew was at one of the gay night spots with Sally Clarke Buzzell. Only last week Sally filed suit for divorce from Eddie Buzzell, the popular director. The Buzzells hold the record for a short marriage. They were married only six weeks when the big split came which left Hollywood gasping.

Edward Arnold might well practice wearing diamonds because he wants to have Diamond Jim Brady's characterization correct. And Charlie Rogers says it's all set for Arnold to play the role all except the actual signing of the contract. Ralph Murphy will direct and Rogers, who is still upset over the item published that Universal will have its own "Diamond Jim Brady" yarn, is losing no time in bringing his story to the screen.

Snapshots of Hollywood

Stunning IRENE DUNNE and GENE RAYMOND with a party of Pasadena socialites at the Beverly Wilshire. They were dancing to Vincent Lopez's intriguing music. GLENDA FARRELL going with DR. WARD WILLIAMS and B. NEWMAN, Hollywood's newest studio gown designer. She says neither is a romance. AL KAUFMAN and GERTRUDE MICHAEL at a preview together. FAY WRAY and JOHN MONK SAUNDERS again talking vacation. We'll wait until we see both of them get on the train before we so much as say they are off to New York on a holiday. FAITH BALDWIN having her picture taken with that picture-stealer SKIPPY. He is the dog that is so good he has been signed for the next WILLIAM POWELL-MYRNA LOY opera. JANET GAYNOR says that her heart is still intact and that it isn't true that she intends to marry a Spanish duke. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Russian Film

The Soviet turns to old Russia for one of the newest of its pictures, "Petersburg Nights," which opened at the Fine Arts yesterday. Based on Dostoyevski's novels, "White Nights" and "Netotchka Nezvanova," the setting is Russia in the mid nineteenth century, a Russia upon which the solid heel of oppression rested heavily.

Mediocrity triumphed in art, if one's politics were right, and from this heartbreaking state of affairs, the novelist and the film director have drawn a strong and gripping story of a young musician and composer.

The picture is admirably acted and forcefully directed, and far more free from propaganda than have been so many of the Russian films. To be sure the age-old conflict of classes is present, but there is a delightful romance, too, and an impressive musical accompaniment. The leading role is handled by a splendid actor named Dobron Ravov, who manages to look a great deal like Conrad Veidt here and there.

Love's Young Dream

Charles Boyer and Loretta Young are the romantic lovers in "Caravan," which opened at the Paramount and Fenway yesterday.

New Revue

As a special stage attraction, starting on Sunday, the Gayety Theater will present "Fashions of 1934," a musical comedy revue direct from New York. In the star roles are Mark Lea, Phil [illegible], Bob [illegible], Jim [illegible], Jane Gray, Al Snyder, Charles and Lora and a chorus of thirty. "Fashions of 1934," a miniature musical comedy revue, is the most elaborate stage presentation ever featured at the Gayety and will continue through Wednesday.

The screen features will be "Whom the Gods Destroy," with Walter Connolly and Doris Kenyon in the leading roles, and "Springtime for Henry," with Nancy Carroll and Herbert Mundin.

Rare Artistry Marks Gypsy Life Film Now at Fenway and Paramount

By JOYCE DANA

In the swaggering atmosphere of Hungarian gypsy life lies the charm of "Caravan," the first of Erik Charell's productions to be made in America, now on the screen at the Paramount and Fenway Theaters.

The young European director, whose masterpiece among many delightful films was "Congress Dances," has brought rare artistry to "Caravan," and had it not been for flagrant errors in casting, might easily have accomplished something pretty handsome. As it is, among the principals, only Charles Boyer succeeds in capturing the charm which the directing and photography call for.

Mr. Boyer, who up until now has been seen chiefly in contemporary characters, combines youthfulness with good broad shoulders, and [illegible] what a hero ought to be. He is as well an [illegible] and [illegible] a bit of an accent just [illegible] to make him irresistible.

Loretta Young, oddly out of place as a raggle-taggle gypsy in shawls and boots, does what she can to be convincing. Jean Parker, one of the most promising of Hollywood's youngsters, is completely beyond her depth as Tika, which called for a Lupe Velez to say the least. Minor parts, however, are excellently taken by such dependable artists as Louise Fazenda, Eugene Pallette, C. Aubrey Smith, Charley Grapewin, Noah Beery and Dudley Digges.

Settings are spectacular with quite remarkable and charming photographic effects. The crowd scenes with Gypsies, soldiers, vintners, a black bear, some swans and other picturesque livestock, are memorable examples of Mr. Charell's genius. The musical score too is vibrant and tuneful, despite the incongruity of a chorus of gypsies bursting into an exuberant Hot-Cha-Cha.

On the same program is "Six-Day Bike Rider," in which the unbeatable Joe E. Brown clowns and grins and has a perfectly grand time in an exciting round of sports and spoofing.

Facist Band at Mechanics

The National Fascist Symphonic Band, leading musical aggregation of Italy and a favorite with Premier Mussolini, will present two concerts on Sunday afternoon and evening, November 4, at Mechanics Building.

This continental band, considered by many the finest in the world, will present music from the Italian opera favorites, as well as compositions from Wagner, Mozart, Beethoven, Brahms, Tchaikowsky and other great masters.

Since their recent appearance at the Boston Garden the band has appeared with great success in New York and Chicago.

DIFFICULT TO GAUGE MIND OF BANKERS

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Our reference to Mr. Reynolds' address as an inferential endorsement may be traced to his interrogatory manner of stating his position. He asked whether bankers generally were not in error in expecting too early at which a balanced budget could be attained. Mr. Reynolds then went on to question the attitude of bankers if they were faced with the problem of stabilization. Quite frankly he inferred that monetary instability abroad and inflationary demands at home would be more than bankers would dare to disregard in striving for stable money values.

In one respect we must change our views on likely reaction limits for the list as a whole. A terrific strain on the technical position of the market must have resulted from the abortive upswing on the sudden announcement of the unconstitutionality of the Pension Act. Short positions that we might have counted on to cushion a drop in here covered. The backward rail group in particular has probably become quite vulnerable because of the bear stampede. Consequently instead of looking for an average dip of three to five points we now allow for five to seven.

The average chartist is faced with a perplexing problem. In fact, one that encourages bearishness. For his plottings of the last two months plainly reveal ascending triangles. Found by drawing a trend line up across the recent line of bottoms and horizontally across the tops concentrated in an area approximately at last Wednesday highs. This triangular formation has been broken on the downside and is considered a bear signal. The trouble is that false moves often take place and chartists wonder which view to take.

Records show that it has taken the market several days in the past to digest the President's speeches.

RECOVERY PLAN OF HEARST IS PRAISED

By B. C. FORBES

In the West Oct 2[illegible] Westerners complain they haven't been adequately represented or heard at Washington that [illegible] all advisers and officials have been drawn from the Eastern third of the country.

B. C. Forbes

"It isn't that we think we are smarter," one far west leader explained to me. "But we did see more clearly than the East seemed to see that President Roosevelt's victory presaged very far-reaching social, financial, economic changes. And most of us were prepared from the start to cooperate sympathetically in molding the new legislation and presidential action which we knew for a certainty was coming.

"However it is encouraging to learn from your column and other sources that business men and the President are drawing closer together for consultation."

He added: "I noticed, though, that in the list of men of affairs chosen by leaders as best fitted to tender the President sound practical advice, the West was almost entirely overlooked, except that we claim William R. Hearst as a Far-Westerner, notwithstanding that his interests are nation-wide."

Which led to this further observation: "If industry had listened more attentively and responded more wholeheartedly to the liberalism persistently advocated for many years by Mr. Hearst, America probably would not have reached the dangerous radicalism of recent times.

"It is to be hoped Eastern business men have had their eyes opened and that they will now go the limit in co-operating with President Roosevelt."

MARKET LOWER ON RENEWED SELLING

New York, Oct. 26—A persistent dribble of selling in the rails and utilities brought a renewed reaction in the stock market today with losses running to 2 points.

During the frist hour the greatest part of the day's losses were suffered after which turnover tapered off and the list held steady around its lows but showed no appreciable recuperative power.

FAVORITES HIT

The brunt of the selling in the rails was again borne by the recent favorites, including Atchison, Southern Railway, New York Central and Lackawanna.

In the Utilities Consolidated gas dipped fractionally to within striking distance of its record low, but appeared to be receiving a fair support. Other utility shares, though, were heavy.

Failure of the Bethlehem directors to make any preferred payment yesterday brought considerable selling into the stock today with losses running to 2 points. United States Steel also was easy and down about a point.

Chemical shares held comparatively well.

Motors were heavy as Chrysler and General Motors dipped. Oils, aviations, merchandising and building shares marked time.

Wheat was heavy, while cotton just about held its own.

CAR LOADINGS

Freight car loadings for the week ended Oct. 20, showed a seasonal gain of 4,641 cars over the previous week. The total of 640,280 cars was 16,725 under the aggregate for the similar 1933 week.

Wall street's interest was largely divided between further interpretations of the President's latest speech to the country's bankers and explanations of the relatively poor earnings statements of Bethlehem Steel, General Motors and Consolidated Gas.

So far as the new alliance between the administration and the bankers is concerned, the thought was expressed by some commentators that this development could not be expected to yield overnight results.

The decline in earnings of the more important corporations in the third quarter was not surprising to industrial observers who had already pointed out that the profits margin during this period would be considerably reduced because of the growth in operating costs and hesitancy of consumers in the face of general political uncertainties.

Most trade analysts were not expecting any pronounced improvement in the heavy industries in the final quarter, although hopes for a substantial pickup in the early part of next year were voiced by some.

Recovery proponents were mildly cheered by estimates of bank clearings in leading cities for the week ended Oct. 21, which placed the total at $1,429,909,000, or an increase of 7.5 per cent over the previous week. This total, however, was 5.6 per cent under the aggregate in the corresponding period last year.

Loans to Brokers Increase in Week

Brokers' loans for own account were reported Thursday as $636,000,000 as of October 24 and compare with $626,00,000 last week, an increase of $10,000,000. Loans on securities total was $1,435,000,000, against $1,434,000,000 last week.

Loans on securities to brokers and dealers in New York were $587,000,000 and outside New York $49,000,000.

Loans on securities to others were $799,000,000, as against $808,000,000. No borrowings from Federal Reserve banks were reported.

Lindsay Light Has Gain in Profits

Net profit of Lindsay Light Co. for nine months ended Sept. 30, 1934, was $28,300 after charges, depreciation and taxes, equivalent after dividend requirements on 7 per cent preferred stock, to 29 cents a share on common, against $17,089, or 10 cents a share, in the first nine months of 1933.

For quarter ended September 30, last, net was $9821 after charges and taxes, equal to 11 cents a share on common, against $5262, or two cents a common share in September quarter of previous year.

Coleman Bros. Corp.

Directors of Coleman Bros. Corp. have authorized issuance of $107,200 of additional stock consisting of 2000 shares of preferred and 2072 shares of common.

In order to facilitate the computation of margins under the regulations of the Security Exchange Act, the Boston Evening American now carries the low since July 1, 1933, instead of the low for the year. The Securities Exchange Act provides that until July 1, 1933, the lowest price at which a security has sold since July, 1933, shall be considered as the lowest market price in the preceding 36 months. After July 1, 1936, the Act provides that the lowest price in the preceding 36 months will form the basis for margin computation.

Net Income of Boston And Maine Lower

Net income of $42,226.10 over and above its fixed charges was earned by the Boston and Maine Railroad in September, it is shown in figures made public today. This compares with net income of $173,222.32 in September, 1933, although operating revenues in September were over half a million dollars less than in September last year.

The showing is remarkable in that, the figures disclose, while operating revenues for the month were $507,478.67 less than in the comparable month last year, efficiencies in management resulted in a decrease in operating expenses for the month of $305,258.34. Expenses for maintenance of way in September this year were somewhat greater than in September, 1933.

SUCCESS No. 876958

It seems only yesterday that he was an embittered, disillusioned and lonesome dentist. But today, Jafletz B. (B. for Buzzy) Doakes is in the money. We mean the real money! Always it is darkest just before dawn, and he was about to give it all up and learn to operate a steam shovel when one night he went to a wrestling match and had his beautiful dream. To be exact, it was during a three falls to a finish exhibition between "Rubber Face" Grovel and Ugh Housefallen, the Corrosive Chiropractor. The very next day Doakes rented an old barn, installed seats and hung up a sign announcing: "EXTRACTIONS PERFORMED ABSOLUTELY FREE. RINGSIDE SEATS A DOLLAR." And need we tell you he's turning them away, folks? Day in, day out, he's turning them away.

But all in all, there's probably nothing quite so decisive as indecision at a disarmament conference.

A Vote for Curley Is A Vote to End Unemployment

A VOTE for James M. Curley a week from Tuesday is a vote for work-and-wages, sound government and the prosperity of all the people.

The issue was ably expressed last night by the able Edward A. Filene, in a radio address calling upon the men and women of Massachusetts to elect Mr. Curley. Mr. Filene said:

"A vote for Curley is a vote for the completion of the great task which America has undertaken—a vote for the abolition of unemployment and poverty and a vote for the achivement of real human liberty, not only in our political but in our economic life."

As Mr. Filene pointed out, politics can no longer be left to politicians alone; men of affairs in business and the professions are taking a hand to assure the happy destiny of state and nation.

Mr. Filene, Boston business leader and economist of world-wide reputation, is one of many such men of affairs who have ventured into this campaign to urge the necessity of electing Boston's great three-time mayor to the governorship.

Another active campaigner for Mr. Curley is Professor Frank L. Simpson of Boston University.

They are representative business and professional men who have heretofore stood aloof from politics, having no axes to grind, courting no favors, having no political debts to pay.

He is, indeed, an outstanding candidate who can summon into the field of politics to his staunch support such men of important standing and unimpeachable integrity from the fields of business and education.

This is, as Mr. Filene declared, no ordinary campaign which sounds throughout the Commonwealth—reaching into homes, business and industry, the professions and the fields of higher learning—a clarion call to the banner of James M. Curley.

Can there be any doubt of the outcome?

They Don't Understand

Providence dispatch reports the police holding two Boston youths, charging them with stealing an automobile. The police say they caught the boys because the youngsters had also stolen a second pair of registration plates and attached them carelessly.

It is evident the Rhode Island police don't understand the way thefts are made to appear almost innocent under existing Massachusetts laws.

Here these boys, even guilty, would probably only be accused of "misappropriating" the automobile. That would make it possible to pass the matter off as a sort of jest, leaving the offenders free. Encouraging them on a path of crime.

Is it any wonder that scores of automobiles are stolen in Boston weekly? Or that, as a result, we have a rapidly mounting toll of hit-and-run "autoists"?

Jobs for All of Us

Colonel Benjamin A. Franklin, former president of Associated Industries of Massachusetts, strikes a happy vein in his latest article on "The Distribution of Wealth."

After discussing the various ways and means of attaining this goal, he says:

"But a fair and wider distribution of wealth can only be accomplished successfully and effectively when wealth is used to give all able to work an opportunity to do so, and a fair return for their labor.

"The more capable and the thrifty will reap the greater portion in such a distribution."

Colonel Franklin admits that we haven't yet found the way to bring this about, but concludes with typical Yankee optimism:

"But we'll probably keep on trying!"

Business IS Better

We of New England are to be envied. Our relative recovery position is more favorable than that of the country as a whole.

How much better you say? Well, to be exact, 13.1 per cent better as measured by most recent Internal Revenue collections.

Source of Internal Revenue levies is trade. And with New England collections showing an increase of 55.1 per cent over last year business IS better.

Let us be thankful. And work the harder. For it is the only way to spread the trade gains and bring a greater measure of prosperity to more of our neighbors.

The Last Survivor

Captain Thomas A. Buell, last survivor of Smith Post, No. 9, Grand Army of the Republic, is dead in Fall River. At the ripe old age of 92, he died from the effects of a fall.

Fisherman, soldier and banker, Captain Buell was a typical example of the strong men who marched forth for Old Glory when Lincoln sounded the call.

The modern idea of honoring the "Unknown Soldier" is all right. But let us also pay tribute to the memory of this rugged "Last Survivor," as well as to that of his comrades, who fought, as Lincoln said:

"That government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

The family car will thus appear
Quite early in the coming year
If tax mad governments persist
In adding taxes to the list.

For every tooting of the horn
Some new tax burden must be borne.

Too many men are on the pile
That tax the motor's every mile.

Our politicians seem agreed
That tax reduction is the need
But when they vote upon each bill
For cutting will they think so still?

Listen, World! -:- -:- By Elsie Robinson

Can We Find Happiness by "Playing Safe?"

Pretty Jeannette MacDonald, Hollywood star, isn't going to marry Robert Ritchie—yet.

Elsie Robinson

Doesn't she love him? Plenty! And that's just why she's postponing marriage. For—suppose their marriage didn't "turn out happily?" Marriage, thinks she, is lovely—IF . . .

"When marriage turns out as it should, it's the grandest thing imaginable and should bring perfect happiness to all concerned. But—"

A cloud goes over that well-known smile. Look at all those divorces! Hardly a day but one of her friends tells it to the judge with tears. So what's a girl who loves her Man to do?

Wait—decides Jeannette. Wait until they're both ABSOLUTELY SURE that their marriage "will last forever"—for "romance is too precious a thing to spoil."...

WHAT THEY'LL MISS

But won't they miss many happy times—intimate hours—gay adventures for Just Two?

"Of course we will," sighs Jeannette, "but these are some of the little things that we must give up in trying not to risk our happiness."

A wise plan? Yes? M-m-maybe. But I wonder.

"Playing safe" with love . . . "not risking happiness" . . waiting until you're "perfectly sure." Fine phrases that listen lovely, and we all set store by them when faced with the possibility of taking a new step.

Sometimes it's love with which we try to "play safe." Sometimes it's a job. Moving to a new place. Leaving our family and friends. Tackling a strange environment.

Always we wonder, as Jeannette is wondering—"Is it wise? Can I be sure I'll be happy?" And nine times out of ten we end by saying, as she is saying—

"I'll wait until I'm perfectly sure. My present situation—my home, the people I love, the job I'm used to—it's all too precious to risk."

So we haggle with fate—hoping for guaranteed happiness. Do we get it? Not once in a blue moon!

For happiness isn't something that comes in an Insured Package. Happiness is a BY-PRODUCT . . . which comes as we go along. It's the process of those very risks and sacrifices and adjustments which we dread and try to avoid.

NO PLAY—NO PAY

YOU CAN'T HAVE HAPPINESS UNLESS YOU RISK IT.

YOU CAN'T HAVE LIFE UNLESS YOU SPEND IT.

You can, it is true, achieve something which some cowardly or sluggish spirits call happiness. A state of stupid inertia—smug comfort—devoid of excitement or curiosity.

A cow or a carrot might enjoy an existence like that — but there's nothing in it for a proud, eager human being . . . and for a very good reason.

Nature abhors pikers or slackers. Hers is a swift and dangerous program, and if you can't or won't qualify, you're just out of luck. Barnacles, clams, snails and other stay-putters get only her slimy leavings. They run, it is true, scant risks—but they also get even scantier rewards.

But for the reckless ones of the soaring wings and restless heels —eagles, winged and otherwise— the great adventures are reserved. Those who dare to live dangerously profit accordingly.

YOU GET OUT OF LIFE AS AND WHAT YOU GIVE.

NO PLAY—NO PAY.

STYLES IN GALS

Women have always demanded changes of styles in clothes—and men now seem to demand changes of styles in women. At least they THINK they do.

Helen Rowland

Fashions in gals appear to change as rapidly these days as the color of a screen star's hair. From skinny to plump, from red-head to platinum, from slithery vamp to tomboy-type they veer miraculously—just overnight!

It is almost impossible to be sure which type of woman is the mode at the moment. The silver-tongued saleswoman in the smart shoppe will assure you that the Mae West vogue prevails and that the most admired figure of the day is the West curvelinear.

That you must billow a-la-Diamond-Lil if you would be in the picture. Others will adjure you to bant off a few more pounds and try a wind-blown Hepburn bob.

AHEAD OF HOLLYWOOD

Just as though a woman's personality and type were entirely a matter of avoirdupois and coiffure! We have had styles in women, ever since the days of Lilith—which was before Eve invented clothes, and thousands of years before the Hollywood diet was discovered.

In Grandmother's day, the girls were simple and saccharine. Men liked them that way then—and men still like them that way. Sweet. Later, the mode changed and the dreamy-eyed vamp held the spotlight. After that, came the jazz decades and the popularity of [illegible] turbulent, irrepressible, [illegible]py girl."

Every girl under twenty-five thought herself a replica of Clara Bow.

But the fad has passed. And now the type-mode of the moment is the poised, self-reliant, forthright type—vibrant, snappy, cool and uncompromising. No feminine nuances, no jazzy nonsense, no vampish lures. Simple, straightforward and almost TOO natural.

She is, of course, a vast improvement over her predecessor; but that is not saying that she is eternal, or that she is more than a momentary fad. Most of these changes of styles in women are merely superficial; just changes in the feminine outline and the feminine manner.

WOMEN CHANGE LITTLE

Women do not change much in reality. And, fundamentally, men's tastes in feminine charms are the same today, yesterday and forever.

Men do not care for holocausts of pep nor do they care for human refrigerators. They tire of sweet, clinging dumbbells and flee in fright from predatory Amazons. They want women to be WOMEN!

Slinky vamps who undulated through drawing-rooms and gazed out from under heavily pencilled eyelids have long since passed away and snappy, hipless tomboys will follow them. The Eternal Feminine will persist, in spite of all the changing styles in women!

Girl babies will continue to be born with curves and dimples and coquetry and feminine caprices. And men will continue to like them that way, no matter what the current fashion in gals.

IN JUST A FEW YEARS

We shall remember by and by
  The children's laughter and their song
And it may be that we shall sigh
  For coats to hang where they belong
And toys to gather from the floor
  When evening comes to close the day.
For all these tasks will be no more
  When they have grown and gone away.

These countless little cares we do
  We'll greatly miss in years to be.
We'll some day wish that they would strew
  Their things about so carelessly.
The house will seem so still and neat
  That as we sit together then
We'll wish their little muddy feet
  Would race about the place again.

When age has claimed them as it must
  And we shall sit at home alone
You'll merely have the chairs to dust
  And I to 'tend the telephone.
We shall remember then that we
  Once picked up playthings here and there
And we shall long once more to see
  Their hats and coats upon a chair.

Human Side of the News; Phelps Gives Warning

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

Some eight years ago, when he was on the Naval Board, Rear Admiral William Woodward Phelps gave Charles Evans Hughes, then Secretary of State, quite a shock by a speech in which he saw the possibility of war with England.

The admiral's idea was that the American merchant fleet, built up during the war, had become a menace to British control of world commerce, something with which John Bull had not reckoned.

Secretary Hughes rushed into print with the statement that Admiral Phelps in no way reflected the opinion of the government; that he was speaking only as a private individual.

That was an era of hands-across-the sea, naval disarmament, a Socialist government in England and advocation of unpreparedness a dominant factor in American thought. Admiral Phelps, retired now at the age of 64, after 42 years of active service, speaks again in a remarkably blunt letter to a New York newspaper.

NEW WARNING GIVEN

The burden of his thought is that British diplomacy is busily engaged with the problem of Japan's commercial expansion and that the United States had better look to it that she is not maneuvered into fighting a war for the salvation of British trade. We are today on the eve of another naval armament parley.

This time it is no pacifist government which speaks for England. The Imperialists are back in the saddle and admittedly they are arming for war and have renewed the alliance with France as it was before 1914.

As to navies, England is building, so are we, and so is Japan. England is growing cold to a conference at this time and wants it put off. The Japanese ambassador is returning to America after a summer at home devoted to the working out of Tokio's stand on the 5-5-3 ratio.

Admiral Phelps bases his warning to his country on a recent adroit move of the British. They had secretly proposed to our mysterious minister without portfolio, Norman H. Davis, an Anglo-American alliance against Japan's demands for naval parity.

Then they gave out a part of Davis' reply which made it appear, especially in Japanese eyes, that the United States had proposed the combination.

"It would appear," says Admiral Phelps, "that instead of being eager to accept at its face value a British proposal for an anti-Japanese Anglo-American sea power combine, Americans should continue to be warned that it might well be British strategy destined to increase Japanese animosity against Americans up to the danger point: at which Britain would run out on the Americans, in the hope to unload on the Americans, in British interests, a senseless and unnecessary conflict that would cripple all United States and all Japanese trade and shipping to the advantage of Britain."

Japan, in a trade sense, in relation to England today, is pretty much as Germany was before the World War. Alone of the large countries, her exports increased during the depression, not a little, but to dizzy heights. She is building merchant ships and sending them loaded down with cheap products to all parts of the world.

The English manufacturers look on with alarm and anger. We in the United States have been disturbed only a little for this reason: Japan must buy her raw materials which we can and do supply to offset the effects of Japanese inroads on our exports of finished goods.

STRUGGLE AHEAD

Make no mistake that the Japanese are alive to the fact that the English manufacturers are not going to give up their world markets without a struggle. They know all the blunt things which these same Englishmen have been saying about their cheap labor, cheap prices and the "yellow menace" in commerce.

Admiral Phelps has an idea that we Americans may not be fully alive to the situation and he writes:

"By the resulting fumblings of the Americans with world courts, leagues, Geneva conferences, pacts and consultations, the Americans are in constant danger of having themselves maneuvered into fighting other people's wars. It would appear that the British continue to think the Americans easy fruit.

"They think that by patient intrigue, Britain, in the next few years or so, can create such a Japanese hostility towards the Americans as will eventuate in each trying to kill off the other's competition with British sea power control and British trade."

Lessons in Loyalty

THE other day we read an acknowledgment that Communist teachings are made available to young minds in camp schools financed by Federal money.

The practice was defended, or excused, by the plea that it is better to have "all questions openly presented."

Communism raises a lot of questions, as it also raises a lot of trouble.

For one thing—the main thing, in fact—its avowed objective is THE OVERTHROW OF ALL FREE GOVERNMENT, including of course the Government of the United States.

Yet the Government itself, directly or indirectly, permits relief facilities supported by its loyal people to be used to encourage the recognized enemies of the Republic.

The man in the old fable who warmed a viper in his bosom showed precisely the same kind of wisdom.

IN striking contrast to the Federal Government's mistaken "tolerance" is the action taken by the State of New York to combat the spreading of seditious and subversive doctrines.

Not only is New York enforcing its Ives Law, requiring teachers to take oaths of loyalty, but through its Board of Regents, under a mandate of the Legislature, New York this week has also made EDUCATION IN PATRIOTISM compulsory in both public and private schools.

These institutions, in the language of the Legislature, are henceforth required "to inculcate in our students a more full, complete and fundamental understanding of our Federal Constitution, political history and philosophy, the merit of our form of government and the guarantees of liberty embraced thereunder, so that our people will be inspired to forever protect, maintain and defend it."

Of the two examples, New York has set the right one for America to follow.

The States are still the Nation's trustees of popular education.

And every State, in the faithful keeping of its trust, should have exactly what New York now has — a ban on disloyal teachers and straightforward courses in Americanism for our future citizenship.

Geography Changes

Leave it to our New England colleges to upset old notions WHEN these ideas are wrong!

For centuries men have marveled about the Gulf Stream.

Yale scientists have lately discovered that it has been much misunderstood. They report that the "Gulf" has nothing to do with the "Stream"—which raises a new marvel as to how the stream got its name.

The old idea was, of course, that the Gulf Stream originated in the Gulf of Mexico.

But instead, it seems, the current starts off Yucatan and flows past Florida "without any evidence of any Gulf of Mexico water having been added."

The scientists therefore propose to call it the "Florida Current" hereafter, and in fact, we learn, a number of oceanographers are already doing so.

With St. Petersburg become Leningrad, Peking now Peiping and Marseilles shrunk to Marseille, keeping up with geography is getting to be harder than keeping up with the neighbors.

The newly-named "Florida Current" is not to be confused, by the way, with that of southward travel.

This last-named "current" originates annually about this time of year in and around Boston. And its "tributaries" in turn find their source among those of us who "have the price"!
